Damage Runs High

Fire swept through Rick's Body Shop, about four miles east of Sedalia on Highway 50, shortly after 11 a.m. Tuesday and gutted the building. No injuries were reported. Rick Geer, owner of the business, estimated his loss including contents, at $35,000 to $40,000. Pettis County firemen Ronnie Ollison and Charles O'Dell battled the blaze for about 40 minutes before getting the fire under control. Geer said the fire started as he was working on a car inside the garage. A cutting torch he was using came into contact with the gasoline line on the car, he said, causing it to explode. Four cars, all owned by Geer, were destroyed. Geer said the building was covered by insurance.

Patman Assails Nixon's Actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Wright Patman of the House Banking Committee said today President Nixon, as chief of his re-election campaign, is directly responsible for the "most sordid political tactics ever employed by a major political party."

The Texas Democrat made the comment at a news conference which he said was called because of reports in today's Washington Post detailing alleged plans by Republicans to disrupt and sabotage efforts by Democratic presidential contenders earlier this year.

Referring to the Post story, Patman said "this is an attempt to substitute espionage for political discussion. It is a chapter out of the political handbooks of the totalitarian countries."

"President Nixon is in control of his own campaign. He is responsible," Patman said.

The Post said in today's editions that the FBI has established that the Watergate bugging incident developed from a campaign of political spying and sabotage on behalf of Nixon's re-election.

The newspaper said the "massive" campaign was directed by White House officials and the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

In Iowa, Nixon would not comment on the story.

Patman, who last week was voted down by his committee when he sought to launch a full-scale investigation of the Watergate incident, said he is renewing that effort.

Calling on Nixon to open up the records of his campaign organization, Patman said he was summoning his committee to a special session Thursday and would ask four key Nixon aides to appear.

He urged Nixon to require that all presidential aides be available to answer questions and "to reveal publicly what has gone on behind the backs of the American people."

Patman said the four witnesses he was asking to appear Thursday were Maurice Stans, Nixon's re-election finance chief; former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, who stepped out in July as overall campaign chief but remains a top consultant to Nixon; Clark MacGregor, current head of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, and John Dean, White House staffer who conducted an in-house investigation of the Watergate incident.

Patman said he had consulted with the General Accounting Office, which is charged with enforcement of a new federal election law, and that the GAO had agreed to re-open its own investigation of Nixon finances, already linked to the Watergate.

The GAO investigation, Patman said "is under way at this hour."

The Post reported that White House aide Ken W. Clawson has acknowledged fabricating a letter that damaged the presidential campaign of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie—a statement Clawson denies.

The newspaper quotes law-enforcement sources as saying the Clawson letter is the best example of a Republican strategy of sabotage directed at Democratic presidential contenders as early as 1971, before the primary campaigns began.

The Post said FBI agents have established that the break-in and alleged bugging of Democratic national headquarters also stemmed from the same sabotage campaign directed by officials of the White House and the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Another example, the Post said, was alleged attempts by Donald Herbert Segretti to recruit GOP undercover agents to disrupt Democratic activities.

The Post said Segretti, a former Treasury Department lawyer who now maintains offices in Marina Del Ray, Calif., has been identified in FBI reports as an operative of the Nixon campaign.

A spokesman for the Nixon committee, DeVan L. Shumway, said, "The article in the Post is a piece of fiction."

The Post quoted investigators as saying the sabotage campaign included: "Following members of Democratic candidates' families; forging letters and distributing them under the candidates' letterheads; leaking false and manufactured items to the press; throwing campaign schedules into disarray; seizing confidential campaign files, and investigating the lives of dozens of Democratic campaign workers."

Clawson, deputy director of White House communications, could not be reached for comment Monday night. A newsman who telephoned his home was told via the White House switchboard that he had retired for the night and that his wife did not wish to awaken him.

The document Clawson allegedly wrote was a letter to the editor of the Manchester

Gubernatorial Hopefuls In Face-to-Face Meeting

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Republican gubernatorial nominee Christopher "Kit" Bond said Monday night he wants to dismantle the Democratic political machine in Jefferson City. But his opponent, Edward L. Dowd, said voters should think twice before turning state government over to Republicans.

The two met face-to-face for the first time in their close contest for the governorship. Each presented his case before a noisy audience of 1,800 at the University of Missouri. Each took some boos and cheers and got off some barbs at his opponent.

Bond linked Dowd to the present Democratic administration which he said was responsible for a "spoils system" of government and "padded payrolls...it's time to put a stop to the waste."

"We're just not going to change the faces of those running the political machine, said the young state auditor, "we're going to dismantle the machine."

Dowd, who was appointed to the St. Louis Police Board by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, but has been in private law practice the last few years, said: "I don't claim to be part of the Jefferson City establishment." He said the Democrats have done some good things but "we didn't do near enough." He named mental health and education as two areas he would give special attention to.

Dowd went on to attack the Nixon administration for its handling of the Vietnam war, political favoritism and the wiretapping of Democratic national headquarters.

"Stop and think," Dowd said to those who would vote Republican. "Look what you got in 1968."

When Dowd mentioned the name of George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, he drew cheers.

But when Dowd's initial statement lasted far beyond the time alloted, and the moderator sought to stop him, there was laughter. "I can't tell which way that applause was going," he said at one point during the laughter.

Bond received standing applause when he appeared in the auditorium but the applause was more subdued.

When Bond was given more time, he dismissed Dowd's remarks on the Nixon administration by saying: "I'm sure we all appreciated the discussion of history." But, he said, the Nixon record was not an issue in the race, but rather, "what we're going to bring to state government."

Bond said he has four years of experience in state government while "my opponent does not have four days experience."

Bond attacked Dowd for not making full disclosure of his campaign contributions but Dowd hit back by saying Bond refuses to list his net worth.

A student's question asked why Bond did not list his total assets. Bond said he reported the nature of his holdings and their location and felt that was all that was relevant.

"How much?" a student shouted. But Bond did not respond.

Bond is a member of the family that holds a large interest in A. P. Green Refractories of Mexico, Mo., one of the nation's largest firebrick firms.

Later, Dowd said he favors curtailing taxes that hit the poor in favor of possibly increasing corporate taxes and taxes on those in higher income brackets. He looked at Bond and said: "there's nothing personal in these observations."

Bond followed up the debate today by urging Dowd to join him in signing the fair campaign practices code of the National Fair Campaign Practices Committee.

He said that would obligate Dowd to "discuss the issues of the campaign and not to vilify his opponent. He also would obligate himself not to misrepresent or distort the facts."

In Random Poll

Nixon, Kit Bond Leading Locally

A random sample survey conducted by The Democrat-Capital reveals that, less than a month before the November general election, a plurality of those interviewed favor Republican candidate Richard Nixon and a majority prefer Christopher "Kit" Bond over their Democratic opponents.

The final record showed Bond to be the leading local vote-getter with 53 tallies compared to 30 for his opponent, Edward Dowd. The number of persons still undecided totaled 17.

In the Presidential race, a larger number of "fence-sitters," 28, kept Nixon a scant three votes shy of achieving a majority margin over George McGovern. His total number of votes, 47, provided him with a 22 vote lead over the South Dakota Senator.

The Democrat-Capital poll included random telephone samples and personal interviews in the downtown and selected residential areas.

The questions asked of the poll participants were as follows: "If you were voting for President today, who would you vote for? McGovern, Nixon, other, or I don't know;" and, "if you were voting for governor today, who would you vote for? Bond, Dowd, other, I don't know?"

Several significant facts gleaned from the poll, in addition to the obvious one of candidate preference, reveal that there appears to be a greater uncertainty among local voters at this point in their choice for President as opposed to governor.

"I'm just going to wait and see," one respondent said. "I'm voting for Bond, but I'm not automatically favoring a straight ticket. Not yet anyway."

Each presidential candidate lagged about five votes behind his gubernatorial counterpart, a fact which could result in a reversal of American political tradition. Customarily, local and state candidates latch onto the coattails of their party's national standardbearer in hopes of victory. This year, however, it may well be the other way in Missouri.

Private Tuitions Rejected By Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — On an 8-1 vote the Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional today an Ohio law providing tuition reimbursement to parents of private and parochial school students.

With Justice Byron R. White dissenting, the court affirmed the decision of a federal panel in Ohio invalidating the state law. White said a hearing should have been held by the high court.

The justices did not give their reasons for ruling against the state.

Last year, again with only White dissenting, the court declared unconstitutional a variety of state programs that reimbursed Roman Catholic and other church-related schools for instruction in nonreligious subjects.

In that decision the court held direct financial aid to parochial schools involved "excessive entanglement between government and religion."

Ohio officials had attempted to save the 1971 law by appealing to the Supreme Court. It provided for $90 payments to a child per year.

In other actions today, the court:

—Dismissed an appeal, "for want of a substantial federal question," that was designed to sanction homosexual marriages.

—Agreed to decide whether children must be adopted under the supervision of a child placement agency in order to qualify for Social Security insurance benefits.

—Required Indiana to grant welfare aid to needy children 16 to 18 years old who are not in school.

—Upheld various Maryland election regulations that the American Civil Liberties Union claimed were unreasonably burdensome to new political parties.

—Agreed to decide whether cities may ban jet aircraft takeoffs and landings at night.

The three-judge court in Ohio held the reasons advanced in support of the law do not alter "the plain fact that...as it permits reimbursement for tuition, (it) will transfer public funds to religiously oriented private schools."

Talking With Enemy

Peace Speculation Spreading As Kissinger Meeting Grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger went into an unprecedented third day of talks with the North Vietnamese in Paris today, then took time out to call on the French foreign minister, Maurice Schumann.

The presidential adviser on national security affairs went to the foreign minister with Arthur K. Watson, the U.S. ambassador to France.

Reports in Paris said Kissinger is believed to have discussed Vietnam with Schumann.

Kissinger conferred with the North Vietnamese envoys to the Paris peace talks Sunday and Monday and decided to stay over for a third day to continue the meetings.

A Saigon newspaper, with links to President Nguyen Van Thieu's chief adviser, said there had been no major change in the U.S. and South Vietnamese positions in the secret Paris negotiations.

The Tin Song daily declared: "It is not true at all what some newspaper dispatches are saying, that the secret talks in Paris are discussing the political future of South Vietnam. The reports are aimed at dividing the United States and its allies in Indochina."

Tin Song said there were no changes in the allied peace proposal calling for withdrawal of U.S. forces within four months after a cease-fire and the release of all American prisoners of war, and a presidential election within six months of an agreement. Thieu would resign a month before the election.

Set for Nov. 7

Industrial Bond Vote Okayed

In addition to voting Nov. 7 on a large slate of office seekers, Sedalia voters will also decide on a $150,000 general obligation industrial bond issue.

The City Council Monday evening met in special session to set up the bond election which is to benefit Alpha Sintered Metals, Inc., a Pennsylvania firm.

Norman Lewis, vice president of Perry, Adams and Lewis, a Kansas City bonding company, told the council the bond issue represents a good investment.

He indicated that although the company is a small one, it has excellent prospects for growth. Lewis explained that at first glance, the firm's situation did not look particularly good but a thorough study proved otherwise. He noted that Alpha Sintered's record is strong and there has been steady growth.

It was the opinion of several councilmen during the discussion that a vote to have the election is actually an endorsement of the company. Approval of the ordinance calling for the election was unanimous.

George Lockett of the Fourth Ward indicated his earlier misgivings about the firm have been eliminated and endorsed the company and bond issue. Also, First Ward Councilman Don Broaddus said the more recent financial report obtained from the firm makes the company look much better. He emphasized Alpha Sintered's growth.

William Hall, director of economic development, told the council that although the firm will initially hire only about 15 people, Alpha Sintered representatives have assured a work force of around 50 during the first year of operation.

At the meeting were Norman Bankovich, president of the company, Frank Cartwright, vice president and Glenn Beckett, sales representative.

The bond issue will require a two-thirds majority in order to pass.

Retirement Planned By ASCS Inspector

The Pettis County Farm Bureau's recent discussion regarding the possibility of allowing the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) to oversee water management practices in the county coincides with the anticipated retirement of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) water management inspector Erwin Rumpf, The Democrat-Capital learned Tuesday.

The SCS and ASCS are separate agencies operated under the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Under the discussed reorganization, Rumpf's duties would be transferred to a newly-established SCS office. This would leave the current ASCS office solely concerned with the financial end of water management practices conducted by local farmers.

According to Dick Dalton, director of the Pettis County ASCS, "Erwin is definitely wanting to slow down and is considering retirement ... His workload, however, has not diminished to allow him to do this. If anything, it has increased."

In their recent discussion, Farm Bureau members explored the possibility of obtaining enough signatures to place the proposition on the Nov. 7 general election ballot. According to Dalton, only county farmers would be allowed to vote on the measure.

If the SCS were granted supervisory powers in water management practices, the ASCS office would then only be concerned with providing loans and other funds to aid county farmers in financing projects for which the SCS would provide the technical work.

These technical duties, Dalton said, would encompass those currently done by Rumpf, which include staking out terraces, ponds, waterways and other water and soil conservation structures.

The local SCS, if approved, would be formed from a Soil and Water Conservation District within the county, Dalton said. It would be governed by a representative from each quarter-segment of the county and the county University of Missouri Extension agent.

The board members would not concern

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Woman Given Order To Get Own Attorney

Cynobia Wilson, Kansas City, was ordered by Magistrate Judge Frank Armstrong Tuesday to hire an attorney to represent her at a preliminary hearing Oct. 17 or face the possibility of appearing at the hearing without counsel.

Miss Wilson is charged with stealing more than $50. The warrant alleges she stole three women's suits, a coat and four dresses, with a total value of $830, from the C. W. Flower Co., 219 South Ohio, on Nov. 26, 1971.

Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Adam Fischer told Judge Armstrong he was not ready to proceed with Miss Wilson's hearing, which was originally set for Tuesday. Fischer told Judge Armstrong Miss Wilson had not yet obtained legal counsel, but she had $800 in a bank and should not be declared an indigent.

Armstrong continued the hearing to Oct. 17. Miss Wilson is presently in the Pettis County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

In another case, two rural Hughesville youths were formally charged in Pettis County Magistrate Court Tuesday with second-degree burglary.

They are Steven Eugene Pearson, 20, and David Lee Pearson, 17.

The two allegedly broke into the Thomas Cartwright residence, Hughesville, Sunday and stole a 12-gauge shotgun and a hunting bow. They were taken into custody by Pettis County Sheriff's officers later Sunday.

Judge Armstrong set bond at $1,000 each. A preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 24. He also appointed attorney Jack McCloskey to represent the two. They are presently in the Pettis County jail.

Enemy Hold On Hamlets Continuing

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces held on to a string of hamlets 14 to 22 miles north of Saigon today, and the South Vietnamese command acknowledged that its troops were making no effort to drive them out.

In the air war, U.S. fighter-bombers hit North Vietnam with more than 300 strikes Monday for the fifth successive day. The U.S. Command said more than 330 strikes were flown.

The targets included the MIG base at Yen Bai, 80 miles northwest of Hanoi, where Air Force pilots reported several explosions, and the Thai Binh army barracks 37 miles southwest of Haiphong, where Navy pilots reported destroying 16 buildings.

Nearly 100 U.S. B52s attacked targets around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi, 45 miles north of the demilitarized zone, and around the South Vietnamese cities of Saigon, Kontum, Quang Ngai, Da Nang, Hue and Quang Tri.

The U.S. Command said their targets were supply caches, troop positions and staging areas.

Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from the front north of Saigon that in five days Communist forces have occupied at least seven hamlets and one village along an eight-mile stretch of Highway 13.

South Vietnamese troops told Jensen they had been given no orders to move against the enemy, and Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the spokesman for the South Vietnamese command in Saigon, gave this explanation:

"We are surrounding the enemy to prevent them from moving to other places. These are very populated areas, and it is better to prevent the enemy from spreading and mingling with the civilians."

The Saigon command reported 22 enemy troops killed in two clashes in the area Monday and another 38 killed in Tay Ninh province 45 miles northwest of Saigon. South Vietnamese losses were 19 men killed and 34 wounded, the command said.

Says Present System Is Serving Well

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — State Fair Community College President Fred E. Davis suggested to a special legislative committee here Monday that junior colleges in the state would be better off under the present State Department of Education instead of in a new department of higher education.

Davis reportedly told the committee that the majority of junior college presidents favored retention of the present system, working with the State Department of Education.

The testimony was part of an effort by legislators to gain ideas for revamping the structure of state government in view of voter approval in the August primary to implement a reorganization amendment.

Davis told The Democrat-Capital Tuesday he explained to the committee that many of the college's programs are presently administered through the present department, including adult basic education, some vocational programs, and classes taken under the Manpower and Veterans Administration programs.

The SFCC president said if the college was forced to bargain with a new higher education agency they would be bargaining for junior college funds with an agency not necessarily responsible for providing junior college financial help.

Davis said he hoped the college was "placed along functional lines rather than being strictly classified" because the institution offers a two-year baccalaureate degree.

"Because of the nature of community services we offer," Davis continued, "I think that SFCC would stand to lose much if we're placed in a department of higher education."

Davis said that no indication was given to him by the committee in regards to the placement of junior colleges under the newly-aligned system. He emphasized that the committee only drafted interim legislation to be considered in the next session of the legislature.

Also testifying Monday, Dr. Arthur L. Mallory, head of the State Department of Education, said his agency should retain control over junior colleges, vocational rehabilitation and distribution of federal surplus money.

Mallory noted the junior colleges are increasingly emphasizing vocational and technical training and their locally elected boards can work with the Department of Education the same as other local school boards without expensive duplication of effort.

McGovern Peace Plan Announcement Is Set

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

Sen. George McGovern will go on television tonight to announce his plan to end the Vietnam war and predicts that anyone who watches "will vote for the Democratic candidate on Nov. 7."

Other developments as the election campaign moved into its final four weeks included:

—A Washington newspaper story quoting law enforcement authorities on an alleged Republican sabotage campaign against Democratic presidential candidates.

—An appearance by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew at an extravaganza in Anaheim, Calif., where he said Sen. McGovern "tries to obfuscate the issues in emotional rhetoric and reckless and groundless insinuations of corruption and scandal in high places."

—Democratic vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver's statement that Americans "would prefer honest politics to that tricky stuff."

—Disclosure that President Nixon plans to maintain a light campaign scheduled through the election on Nov. 7.

McGovern supporters sought to create interest Monday in McGovern's television appearance in speeches marking the fourth anniversary of Nixon's 1968 statement that "those who have had a chance for four years and could not produce peace should not be given another chance."

McGovern's war speech will be aired nationally by CBS television and other television outlets at 7:30 p.m. EDT and 6:30 p.m. CDT, and will be repeated at 7:30 p.m. MDT and PDT.

In Detroit Monday night, McGovern said talk of an impending peace settlement under the Nixon administration is "just election-eve talk."

The Washington Post today said White House aide Ken W. Clawson acknowledged fabricating a letter which damaged the presidential campaign of Democratic Sen. Edmund S. Muskie during the New Hampshire primary election. Clawson denies admitting the letter was his.

But the newspaper said the alleged fabricated letter was part of a Republican sabotage campaign.

Vice President Agnew addressed an overflow crowd in Anaheim's 9,000-seat convention center following a parade of personalities ranging from Frank Sinatra and John Wayne to the Southern California Mormon choir.

He said McGovern's recent statements proved he had broken a promise last May to "avoid inflammatory rhetoric."

Shriver, in Pittsburgh, said that under Nixon everything that goes up should be going down and everything that should be going down goes up — referring to wages and prices and to the problem of drug addiction and war.

He said Nixon representatives make contradictory statements on whether there will be tax increases.

Debate Cutoff Failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — A first move to cut off Senate debate on a House-passed antibusing bill failed today to win the necessary two-thirds majority.

The vote was 45 for and 37 against, or 10 short of the required margin.

Supporters of the bill had said they did not expect to prevail on this initial test of strength in the battle over sharply restricting busing for school desegregation.

But the groundwork already has been laid for another vote Wednesday on halting the debate. If necessary, still a third vote is in prospect for Thursday.

If a two-thirds majority cannot be obtained in three tries, the House-passed bill is likely to be shelved for the year.

Opponents contend the bill is a regressive one that would turn back the clock on nearly two decades of progress since the Supreme Court's landmark ruling in 1954 that "separate but equal" schools for blacks and whites are unconstitutional.

But backers of the bill claim majority support in the Senate and across the country, and say it is entitled to a yes-or-no vote rather than being smothered by a filibuster.

The bill would make busing for school desegregation a last resort, and even then would permit busing a child no farther than the next-nearest school to his home.

In addition, it would permit reopening old court orders for school desegregation to bring them in line with the bill's restrictions on busing.

The House passed the bill on Aug. 18 by a 282-102 vote, and President Nixon reiterated last week that he is against busing and wants Congress to act before it adjourns. Adjournment may come this weekend.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., a leader of the opposition, urged the Senate Monday not to be stampeded "under the trip-hammer pressure of the desire to adjourn."

He said the stakes are high, involving the future of "our children and our constitutional system of government." He said Congress could afford to wait a few months for the Supreme Court to rule on pending cases.

But Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said that "every time American votes have been given an opportunity to express themselves, they have voted that busing should be stopped."

"The time has come for the Senate to act decisively on this issue," he said.

While Stennis said the bill would preserve neighborhood schools, Hart declared that "a neighborhood school can't be maintained if it violates the Constitution."

He said the courts have found that in some cases school segregation can be rooted out only by busing.

Establish Fund To Pay Youth's Medical Expenses

A fund was set up Monday to help pay medical expenses for Jerry Bryant, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryant, of rural Cole Camp.

The Bryant youth, who has suffered from a kidney disease all of his life, was recently admitted to the University of Missouri Medical Center at Columbia due to a worsening in his condition.

Charles Dillon, Route 1, explained Monday that the Bryant youth will not be put on a kidney machine due to a lack of facilities. He noted that the Center's single machine, designed for 12 patients, is currently serving 15. Dillon added that efforts to secure a machine for Bryant have been futile.

Donations can be made through Dillon or at Third National Bank.

Coroner's Hearing Scheduled in Eldon

(Democrat-Capital Service)

TUSCUMBIA — A coroner's hearing will be held Friday at the Miller County Courthouse here to determine whether a felony was committed in the Sunday shooting death of Paul Franklin Byrd, 21, Eldon, according to Miller County deputy sheriff Ralph Curry.

Byrd died of a gunshot wound to the stomach shortly after 11 a.m. Saturday while en route to a hospital in an ambulance.

Curry said Mrs. Maxine Wood of rural Eldon allegedly shot Byrd with a .38 pistol after she tried to stop a fight between Byrd and her son, Larry. The fight reportedly took place outside the Hershel Wood residence, seven miles southeast of Eldon.

Curry said Mrs. Wood allegedly fired two warning shots at Byrd and then shot him in the stomach.

No charges have been filed.

N.H., Union Leader. It accused the Maine senator of condoning a racial slur against Americans of French-Canadian descent by referring to them as "Canucks."

The letter and editorial attacks on Muskie by the Union Leader's publisher, William Loeb, prompted Muskie to make the now-famous tearful speech denouncing the newspaper and Loeb in front of the newspaper office.

Then the front-runner for the Democratic nomination, Muskie subsequently began to slip in the public-opinion polls and fared worse than expected in the New Hampshire primary in March.

In Beverly, Mass., Loeb, publisher of the Union Leader, said, "The Washington Post has fabricated the whole affair to discredit the White House.

"It's one of the dirtiest pieces of political pool I have ever seen. There's no validity whatever to it."

The Post said information in the files of the FBI and Justice Department show that Republicans carried out a massive campaign of spying and sabotage during the primaries to throw their opponents into such disarray they could not mount a viable campaign against Nixon.

The newspaper quoted federal investigators as saying the GOP operation far surpasses the normal level of campaign intelligence-gathering.

The Post said three attorneys told of being promised "big jobs" in government if they would act as undercover agents for the Nixon campaign and carry out various maneuvers to disrupt Democratic activities.

The Post said all three refused the offer. It identified them as Alex B. Shipley Jr. of Nashville, Tenn., Roger Lee Nixt of Dennison, Iowa, and Kenneth Griffiths of Atlanta, all of whom served with Segretti in Vietnam.

Shipley, 30, a Democrat and now an assistant attorney general of Tennessee, was questioned about the Post account in an interview in Nashville Monday night.

He confirmed that Segretti first contacted him in June 1971 in Washington.

Segretti attended a party at his apartment, and on the following day Shipley drove Segretti to Dulles International Airport. "He mentioned on the way to Dulles that we would do a little political espionage," Shipley said, but added that he did not take the offer seriously.

Shipley said that on several other occasions in 1971 he was contacted by Segretti. "He'd tell me to do something. I'd say 'sure' and then I wouldn't do anything."

Billions Provided In Measure

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The last scheduled appropriation bill of the year was sent to the House floor today, boosting to $176.1 billion the total money requests considered during the current session.

It would provide $3.56 billion in new appropriations for the current fiscal year for miscellaneous activities not financed in 16 previous bills.

The total is $8.9 million less than President Nixon requested.

Major allotments recommended by the Appropriations Committee include:

—$856.4 million for manpower training programs of the Labor Department.

—$893.4 million for the Social and Rehabilitation Service of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and $408 million for the Office of Child Development in the same agency.

—$760.2 million for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

—$266.5 million to expedite recovery from damage caused by tropical storm Agnes and floods in South Dakota.

—$114.8 million for drug abuse treatment, prevention and law enforcement activities.

—$26.3 million to acquire four large aircraft for scientific programs in Antarctica.

—$12 million to repay a government guaranteed loan to the Erie-Lackawanna Railway which was defaulted last June.

The Appropriations panel estimated that by the time Congress is finished with money bills, the total will be about $5 billion under White House requests. Since not all money provided in any year is for expenditure during that year, the net reduction in actual outlays was estimated at $1.5 billion.

However, the committee pointed out, other congressional action on non-appropriation measures, coupled with the money bills, will probably result in increased spending of about $6 billion.

Window Broken Out At Laundry

Pellie Martin, owner of Martin's Cleaners, 210 North Ohio, reported to police two windows on the west side of the building were broken by rocks Sunday or early Monday.

Lester Coleman, production manager at Royal Crown Bottling Co., 1521½ South Grand, reported four ignition keys to company trucks and keys to vending machines were taken from an office at the company during the weekend. Police reported no signs of forcible entry.

253 Persons Wait Until Final Day

A total of 253 persons waited until the Monday deadline date for voter registration, County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson announced Tuesday.

Mrs. Wilson, whose office remained open Monday despite the observance of the Columbus Day holiday by other county officials, said she did not yet have a tabulation of the total number of persons who have registered to vote in the Nov. 7 general election.

Ann Landers

Serviceman Tells Why The Military

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in reference to the young lady whose mother objected to her going to the U.S.O. because it was a pickup spot for low-class servicemen.

Well, I am one of those "low-class servicemen" she spoke of. I am not happy in the military. In fact, I would be much happier going to college but like many servicemen I joined the service because I didn't have enough money for college. I joined so I can get veteran's benefits when my time is up and then go to school. If it is low-class to trade four years in the service for a college education then I am low-class.

The civilian populace shouldn't consider all servicemen guilty of committing war crimes and such. I realize it isn't considered cool to be in the military these days, but for some of us, it is the only way we can see to get ahead.

I hope the young lady's mother will let her go to the U.S.O. and be a hostess. For servicemen it is a very important place to rap since most civilians don't want anything to do with us.

I agree with you, Ann. That mother owes several hundred thousand servicemen an apology, but I'm sure not going to hold my breath waiting for it. Sign me — Low-Class Serviceman At Keesler Air Force Base

Dear Friend: I salute you for a letter that tells it like it is. As for that mother, she sounds like the type whose brains go AWOL when her mouth goes on active duty.

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend my husband and I gave a party for his new boss in our lovely new home. There were about 40 people, most of whom I had met just once or twice. I saw one of the wives pick up a china figurine and slip it into her purse. I decided to say nothing.

The next day when I told my husband about it he was furious at me for not calling her on it right then and there. To be frank with you, Ann, I just couldn't do

Next week we are going to that woman's home for a similar party. My husband says I should look around for the figurine and if I see it, take it with me. I feel this would be wrong. Do you? — Mine And Not Thine

Dear Thine: Yes, I do feel it would be wrong. Somehow I just can't condone taking something out of someone else's home — even if you are certain it was stolen from yours. If you should see the figurine on display you might ask the hostess where she got it because you "mislaid" one similar and would love to replace it. Perhaps she'll offer to give you "hers."

Dear Ann Landers: My husband died 20 years ago. I was in my 30's then. At that time I bought a cemetery plot consisting of four graves. After being a widow for six years I married again. Would it be proper for me and my second husband to be buried alongside my first husband? Or should I sell these plots and buy two plots elsewhere? — Looking To The Future

Dear Looking: You don't say whether or not you have children. Nor do you say how your present husband feels about being buried alongside your first husband, should he predecease you. If you predecease HIM how would HE feel about burying YOU alongside your first husband? Also, you're only in your 50's, and you might marry again. My advice is to sell the lots and buy two others and don't try to second-guess the Grim Reaper.

Credit Sedalian With Saving Life

Southwestern Bell chief operator Betty Pace, Oak Tree Manor, was recently awarded a Bronze Vail Medal for saving the life of a fellow traveler during a June visit to Europe, area manager Bob Johnson announced Monday.

The Vail Medal, established as a tribute to Theodore N. Vail, first president of AT & T, is awarded by the communications industry for acts of courage and noteworthy public service. In the 52-year history of the award only 2,200 have been given throughout the United States. Mrs. Pace's award is the 267th awarded to Southwestern Bell employes, Johnson said.

Mrs. Pace received the award for reviving a woman in Limerick, Ireland, making her the first person in the history of the medal to be honored for a life-saving act in a foreign country.

"I was part of a tour group from the United States," she recalls. "We were in a hotel dining room when I noticed one of the women looked very ill. Some of the others were helping her to the lobby. I followed to see if I could help." By the time she reached the lobby the woman had passed out, Mrs. Pace recalled.

"There were several people around her," she said. "But they seemed panicked. Everyone wanted to do something, but nothing was being done.

She asked the others to place the woman on the floor so she could administer mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

"As I cleared her mouth and began, she lost all signs of life," Mrs. Pace said.

Although the woman suffered an oral hemorrhage, Mrs. Pace continued her lifesaving efforts until an ambulance arrived.

A registered nurse, licensed mortician and the attending physician credited Mrs. Pace with saving the woman's life.

Betty Pace ...

... a real lifesaver

"The lady later said she didn't know how she'd ever thank me," Mrs. Pace said. "I told her I was just glad to see her alive."

Such ordeals are not rare for Sedalia's chief operator, according to Johnson. Since 1965 she has administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to four persons.

"I've had illness in the family and a lot of first aid training during my time with the telephone company," she said. "It's sure come in handy."

Mrs. Pace's Bronze Vail Medal is the highest honor Southwestern Bell can award. A Silver or Gold Award can be presented by AT & T. Mrs. Pace's award is currently being reviewed by AT & T, Johnson said.

Revolutionizes Denture Wearing

The nearest thing to having your own teeth is possible now with a plastic cream discovery that actually holds both "uppers" and "lowers" as never before possible.

It's a revolutionary discovery called FIXODENT® for daily home use. (U.S. Pat. #3,003,988) With FIXODENT many denture wearers may eat, speak, laugh, with little worry of dentures coming loose.

FIXODENT forms an elastic membrane that helps absorb the shock of biting and chewing. You may bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally.

FIXODENT may help you speak more clearly, be more at ease.

The special pencil-point dispenser lets you spot FIXODENT with precision . . . where needed!

Buoyed By Soviet Discussions

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)— The president of the Sierra Club, Raymond J. Sherwin of Vallejo, Calif., said Monday he was "very encouraged" by talks last month in Moscow on environmental matters.

Sherwin was a member of a delegation that spent four days in Moscow in talks on a U.S.-Soviet cooperative agreement on environmental protection as a follow-up to discussions begun by President Nixon last spring.

The Sierra Club president told newsmen the talks led to agreements on 30 separate projects — including one involving the cities of St. Louis, Mo., and Leningrad, Russia.

He said a U.S.-Soviet team will begin studying pollution this year in St. Louis, which has a population of about 622,000, and a similar joint study will be conducted next year in Leningrad, a city of more than three million.

Sherwin said the cause of air pollution will be analyzed in the project. Other projects will deal with marine pollution, genetic consequence of pollution and the influence of environmental changes on climate.

Sherwin said the Russians seem as concerned about pollution as Americans, recognizing that pollution "has no boundaries.

"They appeared to be ready to accept the concept that if we don't do something about pollution, the whole world will die," Sherwin said.

A state Superior Court judge in California's Solano County, Sherwin — in his second term as president of the 138,000-member Sierra Club — said he was impressed to find in the Moscow talks that "everyone had the same goals" and "there was no quibbling" on areas where environmental problems exist.

Sherwin predicted "a great deal of cooperation on the part of the Soviet government" in seeking solutions to pollution and other environmental problems.

Killed in Mishap

ST. LOUIS (AP) — George Faheenn, 66, a St. Louis tavern owner, was killed Monday when the car he was driving went out of control and struck a concrete post, police said.

The accident occurred at an Interstate 70 overpass on Broadway at Hickory.

Police said Faheenn was owner of The Tradewinds tavern.

Identify Body Found in River

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The body found in the Missouri River northwest of Levasy in Jackson County was identified as Kendrick Woodson, 37, a painter who fell into the river Sept. 11 from the new Interstate 435 bridge in Kansas City.

Woodson was found on the north bank of the river Sunday, about 20 miles downstream from the bridge, Jackson County sheriff's officers said Monday.

Woodson plunged about 80 feet into the water when a scaffolding on which he and another man were working slipped. The other painter, Richard Harris, 28, Kansas City, Kan., held on to the scaffolding rope and was rescued by other workers.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT
The Sedalia Capital

Published at Sedalia, Missouri, by The Sedalia Democrat Company

K. U. LOVE, Publisher — Tuesday, Oct. 10, 1972 — F. D. KNEIBERT, Editor

A week to ponder on fire prevention

The Sedalia Fire Department is focusing public attention on National Fire Prevention Week, which currently is being observed throughout the country.

Activities scheduled this week include department-supervised fire drills at schools, inspections of businesses, and institutions, and several special events — all for the purpose of making the public aware of the dangers to life and property from fires.

Last year fire losses in the nation totaled $2.7 billion, according to figures compiled by the National Fire Protection Association. And this represents only direct losses, and does not include the hundreds of thousands of dollars in other losses that are indirectly attributed to fires.

The loss of human life was even more appalling: 11,850 persons killed last year alone. Every hour and 20 minutes, on the average, someone dies in this nation from fire—most frequently a child or elderly person.

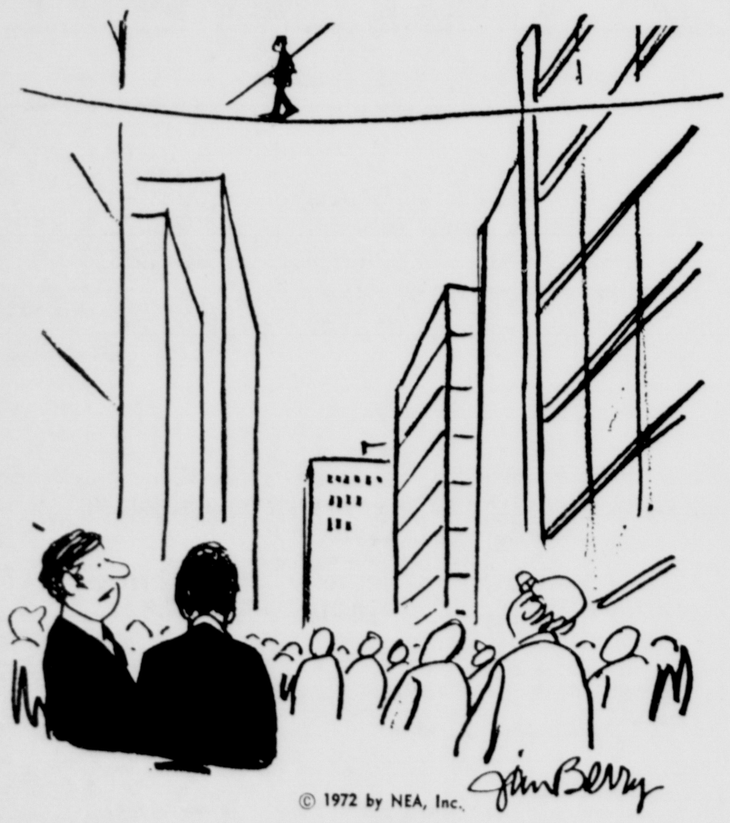

Despite the tragic tolls, the fact remains that the great majority of all fires are preventable. If simple precautions are followed at home, the office, factory or elsewhere, we can reduce the statistics on fire losses.

Most of the potential trouble spots are well-known, but bear repeating: overloaded or faulty electrical circuits; accumulations of trash or other burnable material within the home; carelessness with flammable liquids; smoking in bed; leaving children alone with matches, and a host of other situations that invite accidental fires.

Other precautions should include having a dependable fire extinguisher in the home, the location of which is known to all, and a pre-arranged evacuation route and assembly point for members of the family.

Fires can be prevented, and the human and material losses greatly reduced, if we would all take the time to think about the unthinkable BEFORE it happens.

"On the other hand, it could be McGovern or Shriver trying to get more free TV exposure."

Art Buchwald

TV ads for the candidates

WASHINGTON — The political television commercials are now starting to appear on our television screens. Some of them are pretty boring; others are rather tough on the opponents.

Buchwald

It seems to me that the men in charge of making up advertising campaigns for our presidential candidates could do just as well if they would take the TV commercials that are now on the air and paraphrase them for their own use.

For example, I could see Pat Nixon cooking a steak over a campfire. She says to the audience, "I've been First Lady for almost four years and yet I feel younger now than when Dick first took the job as President. That's because I exercise, get eight hours sleep, eat right and take iron for my blood. Dick treats me better now than he did when I used to wear a cloth coat."

Just then we see Richard Nixon walking toward Pat. He's dressed in a plaid wool shirt and blue jeans. He comes behind her and kisses her on the neck. Then he says to the camera, "My wife, I think I'll keep her."

Another one could show Sen. George McGovern and his wife in their home.

McGovern says, "I don't feel like going out and campaigning today. I just seem so sluggish and tired these days."

Eleanor looks at him and asks, "Is it uhhh . . . irregularity?"

McGovern nods his head sheepishly.

"I have just the thing for it." She holds up a blue bottle.

We cut to McGovern at a rally. He's smiling and happy. The crowds are cheering. He hugs Eleanor and says, "I feel great, thanks to you."

Eleanor giggles, ". . . and Snow White Formula 67."

Another commercial could show Spiro Agnew on the golf course playing with Arnie Palmer. Then the camera cuts to the country club locker room. "That was great fun," Agnew says as he takes off his shirt. "I wish I didn't have to go out now and face those rotten, miserable kids. They hate me. I can't understand why."

Arnie Palmer says, "Maybe it has something to do with underarm perspiration."

Agnew says, "But I use a deodorant."

"Yes," says Arnie, holding up a can, "but maybe you need a dry one that lasts all day. When you're out campaigning, most deodorants won't give you 24-hour protection." Agnew takes the can from Arnie.

We cut to Agnew on a college campus. A group of kids, all with beards and wearing beads, are crowded around him and they're laughing. "We want Spiro! We want Spiro!" they start chanting. Then Agnew turns to the camera and winks. "Arnie was right. All deodorants aren't alike."

The final commercial idea could show Sarge Shriver. First he's eating a pizza in an Italian neighborhood, then he's eating a frankfurter in a Jewish delicatessen, then he's eating Polish ham in a Polish restaurant, then he's eating an Idaho potato on a farm.

Then we cut to Sarge in bed with Eunice. He's groaning and moaning, "I can't believe I ate the . . ."

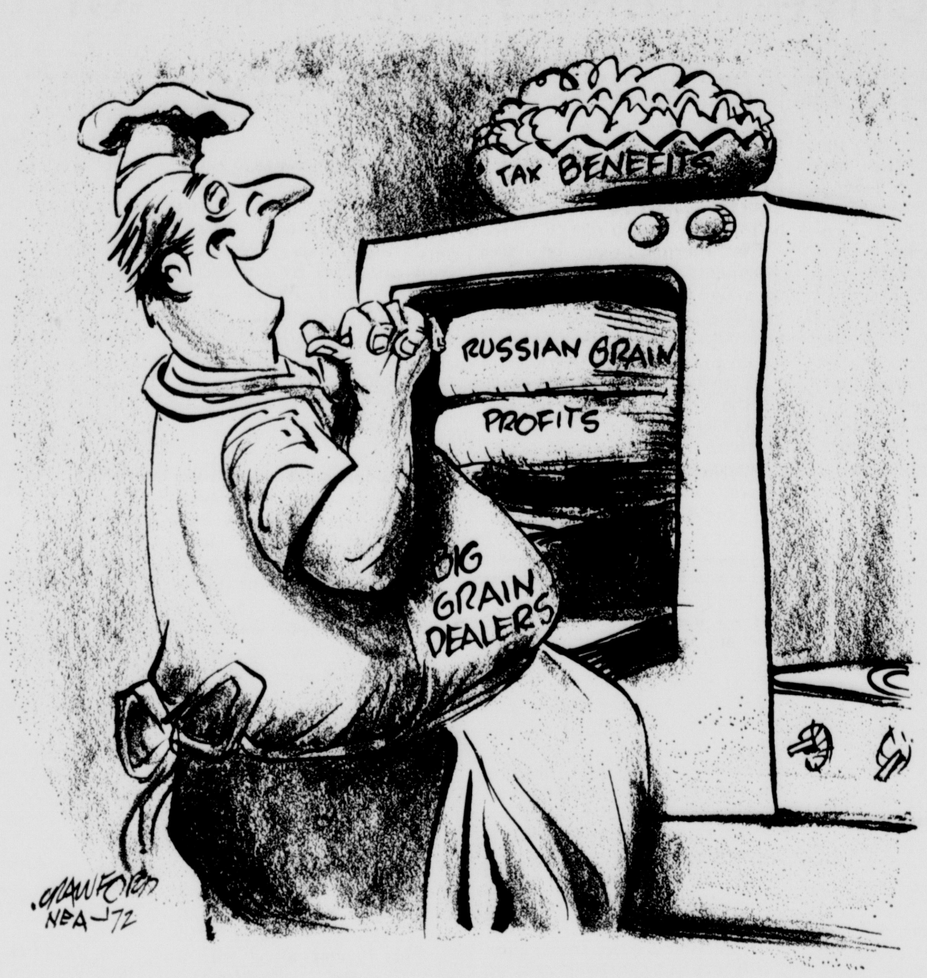

"Don't say it!" Eunice screams as she jumps out of bed and rushes to the medicine cabinet. She gives him two tablets in a glass of water.

The next morning Sarge, refreshed and sparkling, says to Eunice, "Well, I've got to go to a catfish fry at the All Souls Baptist Church this morning, so just give me some of your delicious scrambled eggs, bacon and an English muffin for breakfast."

Eunice puts her arms around Sarge's neck and smiles into the camera, "My husband, I think I'll keep him."

"Now All We Need Is the Frosting!"

Merry-go-round

Santas in Senate for the fat cats

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Christmas usually comes early for the fat cats, with Uncle Sam playing Santa Claus.

The best time to sneak special benefits through Congress, they have found, is during the end-of-the-season rush. Then legislators are so impatient to adjourn Congress and head for home that they don't always bother to scrutinize the fine print.

As Santa's helper, Senate Finance Chairman Russell Long, D-La., customarily prepares the Christmas goodies in the form of tax breaks for the special interests. Every dollar that the fat cats escape paying, of course, must be made up by the rest of the taxpayers.

But the Senate action is usually too fast for the public to follow and Long's hand is quicker than the public's eye.

Now the Senate is heading for another adjournment, the quorum calls are ringing like jingle bells and folks are too busy to notice what Long is doing. But in the privacy of his Senate suite, he is again merrily arranging this season's Christmas presents for the fat cats.

Rep. James Burke, D-Mass., for example, has gift-wrapped two bills to slip under Long's Christmas tree. One would give the cigar industry a $120 million tax break over 10 years and the other would be worth a whopping $3 million to the olive industry.

Another $250,000 tax windfall for the operators of oil rigs and shrimp boats should get special handling from Long, who has oil in his bloodstream from both sides of his family and a soft spot for everyone in the oil industry. The bill, moreover, has the backing of House Democratic leader Hale Boggs.

House Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, meanwhile, is pushing a $70 million tax savings for the banks. This is expected to wind up, too, under Long's Christmas tree. Rep. Hugh Carey, D-N.Y., has also prepared a tax break, complete with Christmas trimmings, for the cable TV industry.

Perhaps the most glittering Christmas bauble, worth up to $1 billion to the tax-exempt foundations, has been readied for Long's Christmas bag by Rep. Herman Schneebeli, R-Pa.

Many tax-exempt foundations get away with running great business enterprises, on the theory that the profits go to charities. To make sure the charities got their fair share, Congress in 1969 increased the amount that had to go to charity by 4 to 6 per cent over five years.

Schneebeli's bill would cancel this, thus taking the money away from the charities and giving it back to the foundations to use for operating capital.

The bill has been pushed by the Pew Memorial Trust, which would save $40 million over the five-year period. It's worth mentioning that the Pew family contributed $7,000 to Schneebeli's last election campaign.

All these Christmas baubles, having to do with taxes, must first clear the House. Then they are delivered to Senator Long who, appropriately enough, has a cherubic look and a jolly nature. Insiders say he had planned to push a series of innocuous bills through the Senate this week. His strategy was to slip the Christmas baubles through while bored senators were paying no attention.

Hopefully, our story may alert the senators or, perhaps, dissuade Long from going ahead with his sleeper play.

Computer Failure — The House's long-awaited, million-dollar electronic voting system has flunked its first test. The Control Data Corporation spent almost a year assembling the sophisticated, computerized system, which swiftly records House votes. At last, House Administrative Chairman Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, was invited to test the system. He selected his personalized voting card, inserted it in an electronic voting station and punched the button. The display board registered his "yea" vote. Then Hays attempted to change his vote. The machine stubbornly refused to record it. No manner of tinkering and fuming would change the machine's mind. "This is a sad performance," grumped Hays. "I won't sign a single voucher until it's working."

Peekaboo Camera — President Nixon's former campaign security chief Jim McCord bought a tiny peekaboo TV camera, miniature monitor and a bracket suitable for mounting the camera inside a ventilation duct a few months before he was caught inside Democratic party headquarters. He confided to a salesman at Washington's Shrader Sound that it was for "surveillance." After some hesitation, McCord billed the $373.82 worth of snooping gear to the Republican National Committee. When we inquired, the committee opened their entire security system for our inspection. We were convinced that the hidden camera was never intended to spy upon the Democrats, but to prevent the Democrats — or anyone else — from spying on the Republicans.

Our Cole Camp correspondent says that the fish in the Osage river are dying in great numbers — a fact greatly to be regretted, especially by the lovers of piscatorial sport. He attributes this fatality to washings from iron, lead and other minerals which abound in great quantities not only directly on the river, but many of the tributaries.

Today's thoughts

Jesus then said to the Jews who had believed in Him, "If you continue in My word, you are truly My disciples, and you will know the truth, and the truth will make you free." — John 8:31, 32.

Truth is tough; it will not break, like a bubble, at a touch; nay, you may kick it about all day like a football, and it will be round and full at evening. — Oliver Wendell Holmes, American poet and essayist.

A conservative view

'Ralph the Just' is wearing a bit thin

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Once upon a time, as Plutarch tells the tale, Aristides the Just was running for re-election. He stopped a stranger on the streets of Athens to solicit his vote. No, said the citizen, who did not recognize the candidate, he could not support Aristides — and it was not as if he had anything against the statesman.

Kilpatrick

What, then, was the trouble? "I'm just sick and tired," said the citizen, "of hearing him called 'the Just.'"

Ralph Nader, the Great Crusader, might be well-advised to meditate upon the story. Beyond question, this dedicated and zealous man has made significant contributions to the safety of American consumers and to the quality of our environment. But he is displaying in his current assault upon Congress a swell-headed arrogance that may cool the ardor of even his most devoted fans. The gentleman is insufferable. The gentleman, indeed, is a bore.

One is reminded not only of Aristides but also of Engine Charlie Wilson. The canard will not die that the great industrialist once avowed that what is good for General Motors is good for the U.S.A. Ralph Nader exhibits the same confusion. His newly-sponsored book, "Who Runs Congress?", grandly equates Ralph Nader with the "people" or with "the public interest." He alone, goes the implication, is qualified to proclaim what is good and wise and progressive. The possibility that he might be wrong — the possibility that decent men might take an opposite view out of pure motives and sound reasons — that possibility never crosses Nader's Olympian brow.

This vainglorious image emerges from the Nader book. The paperback is attributed to Mark J. Green, James M. Fallows, and David R. Zwick, but it bears the imprimatur of the Man Himself. Viewed simply as a book, the book is mostly a non-book. It rehashes every criticism of Congress made in recent years, but it adds little that is new or different. Evidently the work was produced in the mad haste that results in mental blocks. One is startled to learn, in a discussion of seniority, that "John McClellan of Arkansas was elected thirty years ago and went on the House Appropriations Committee," a bit of history that will come as news to the Senator.

What raises one's hackles is the lordly assumption of Nader's factotums that everyone else is vile, and only he is pure. The assumption recurs in a dozen forms. Unions no less than corporations find troublesome regulations standing "between them and the politicians they want to buy." The bad guys are trotted forth in semantic black hats. Congressman O'Neill of Massachusetts, a bad guy, is the "august" chairman of a sub-committee. A vice president of Texaco doesn't merely say; he "intones." It is angels on one side, demons on the other — the "people" arrayed against the "special interests."

The truth is vastly more complex. Are milkmen "people"? Are tobacco farmers "people"? Are the owners of service stations "people"? No, indeed. They are co-conspirators in dastardly plots to "milk the housewife," or they are "small businessmen who are different from you and me." By contrast, "public lobbies" are filled with virtue: "They may save the taxpayer billions." But the baddies, the business lobbies, are concerned only with making "the victims bear the cost of their anticonsumer political efforts."

What is the consumer's interest? The honest answer, in many difficult cases, is simply: It depends. The recent increase in milk prices may or may not have been in the consumer's interest. The oil depletion allowance may be as evil as Nader contends, or it may contribute to the explorations that are vital to a healthy petroleum industry. Safety requirements in general must be applauded, but a fanatical obsession with safety may inflate production costs to a point at which the public interest is adversely affected.

Ralph Nader, of course, has every right to lobby for his causes, and to urge his followers to organize their campaigns. Splendid! But the gentleman is not divinely ordained. The anathema he pronounces on the Congress may amount to Holy Writ; and perhaps members must obey him in peril of their seats. But then, again, perhaps not.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Henry George was an American economist who founded a single-tax movement and published "Progress and Poverty" in 1879. He professed that a single tax on land would cover government expenses and free industry from taxes. The World Almanac recalls. George's theories have influenced some tax legislation in Australia, Britain, Canada, and parts of the U.S. and Western Europe.

Unconventional Proposals For Solving Shortages

(Editors note: Scientists seeking solutions for the nation's growing energy crisis divide possible answers into the conventional and the unconventional. The following, first of a two-part series, examines some unconventional proposals to ease the crisis.)

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whisk yourself into the 21st century. Giant windmills whirl offshore. Floating energy plants rely on differences in the ocean's temperature. Overhead, dumbbell-shaped spacecraft capture the power of the sun.

So go the visions of scientists seeking to ease the nation's growing energy crisis as current, environmentally acceptable sources of energy diminish.

None of the proposals to capture the force of the winds, the tides, tropical ocean currents or solar energy may prove practical. But each possible way of obtaining energy, both conventional and unconventional by today's terms, is being assessed by scientists under Nixon administration orders to seek new sources of energy.

Directing the study is the White House Office of Science and Technology to which 11 advisory panels are to report soon.

The proposal to harness the winds envisions huge windmills located 10 or more miles off the New England and New York coasts and fixed atop 150-foot steel towers rising from stationary floating platforms or anchored directly to the seabed of the continental shelf.

The windmills, propelled by steady westerly winds that sweep over the Atlantic, produce electricity that is used to convert ocean water into oxygen and hydrogen. The hydrogen then is shipped ashore where it is combined in fuel cells with readily available oxygen in a manner that produces enough electricity to supply all of New England and New York. Fresh water is a by-product of this proposed process.

Another scheme for producing electricity proposes use of floating heat engines that are fed on one side by warm water from the Gulf Stream's surface and on the other side by near-freezing water piped upward from the seabed more than one-half mile below the surface.

The thermal gradient, or sharp temperature difference between the two sources of water in the Gulf Stream, promotes the whirling of turbines for the production of electricity.

As with the windmill proposal, the ocean-generated electricity is used to produce hydrogen gas for combination in energy-producing fuels cells ashore.

A third proposal for creating electricity envisions a giant, dumbbell-shaped unmanned spacecratt that orbits the planet at an altitude of 22,000 miles and remains above the same spot on the rotating earth.

The satellite, equipped with a 25-square-mile array of solar cells, captures the intense sunlight at that altitude, transforms it into a strong electric current and converts the current to radar-like waves that are beamed to earth. A 36-square-mile ground antenna picks up the radar beams which are converted back into enough electricity to supply large metropolitan areas.

Still another proposal calls for solar farms that tap energy from the sun in such clear-weather states as Arizona and New Mexico.

The farms consist of thousands of acres of arid land covered with an array of hollow tubes coated with a special chemical film and filled with a heat exchange fluid. The tubes absorb the sun's radiation and retain most of it; the heat exchange fluid converts the radiation to heat which is used to produce electricity-generating steam.

There are these other possibilities for obtaining electricity:

—Along coastal areas of the Bay of Fundy between Maine and Nova Scotia and along the coast of Alaska, huge dams capture high-tide waters and release them at low tide.

The out-rushing water from these geographic points, which have the highest tides in North America, churn giant waterwheels that activate electricity-generating turbines.

—Still more electricity is generated at geothermal power plants placed at strategic points nationwide.

In these plants, cold water is pumped downward three miles or more into the earth's crust through pipes that reach prefractured areas within layers of intensely hot rocks. The water, picking up the heat, is pumped back to the surface where it becomes steam as it emerges. The steam generates the electricity.

However exotic these proposals for producing electricity, they have strong backers among some private and federal researchers and administration scientists say they must be explored on the chance one or another could help relieve energy shortages in some part of the nation.

While White House scientists concede the proposals likely would not be practical before the next century, they say it is always possible research breakthroughs could be achieved before the year 2,000.

The scientists list these two other sources of unconventional energy for possible earlier and relatively wide application:

—Expanded use in the South of roof-top waterheaters fueled by solar power and, in those same sunny states, further use of solar stills for making fresh water from salty, brackish water.

—Generating electricity from two forms of geothermal energy other than the so-called hot rock-type that is deeply locked within the earth.

These more accessible, though geographically less widespread, resources of geothermal energy include steam-yielding geysers and subterranean hot-water systems whose waters can be made to flash to steam if brought to the surface.

The geyser fields of Northern California are the major known domestic source of geyser energy. Power plants of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. began generating electricity at the field in 1960. The combined output is still modest, much less than a single 1000 megawatt a conventional power plant produces.

But scientists say there's a potential for further extensive tapping of this resource.

The more widespread hot water systems are believed to exist nationwide, most abundantly in the 11 western states and Alaska and within special subsurface formations along the Gulf of Mexico from the Rio Grande to eastern Mississippi.

While these systems have been tapped for home heating in a few locations, such as towns in Idaho and Oregon, none so far has been tapped as a source of electricity.

The government's National Science Foundation is actively supporting research in this field.

NSF scientists also are assessing the sea-going windmill concept, the proposal of Dr. William E. Heronemus, a professor of civil engineering at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

Heronemus envisions placing "barrages of wind stations across the prevailing westerlies in the Gulf of Maine-Georges Bank area of the continental shelf."

From Georges Bank to Nantucket and on down to the New York Shoals, about 80 windmill towers would be deployed, each at least 150 feet high, to catch the wind.

The girder-like, kite-shaped towers each would support three torpedo-shaped turbines equipped with big whirling blades.

Towers would be arranged in widely separated units of four towers each, with individual towers deployed about a quarter of a mile apart in a circle about 3½ miles in diameter.

Heronemus also an advocate of seagoing thermal gradient power stations, says that a precedent exists for huge windmills designed to generate electricity.

During the early 1940s, a windmill equipped with a two-blade propeller 175 feet in diameter was erected on Grandpa's Knob in Vermont's Green Mountains.

The mill operated for almost four years, contributing a significant amount of electricity to Vermont's power system. But in 1945 one of its blades snapped, and the venture was abandoned.

So. Cal. Keeps Top Spot in College Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California and Oklahoma held onto the top spots in The Associated Press college football poll today while Alabama moved past Ohio State into third place and upset-minded Auburn cracked the Top Ten for the first time this season.

Southern Cal's Trojans received 34 first-place votes and 964 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters following their fifth consecutive triumph, a 30-21 victory over Stanford.

Oklahoma, which had a week off before this Saturday's annual war with Texas, pulled down 15 first-place votes and 912 points.

The only change among the first eight teams came in the 34 spots, where Alabama climbed from fourth to third with 677 points on the heels of a 25-7 trouching of Georgia.

The Crimson Tide changed places with Ohio State, down from third to fourth after a come-from-behind 35-18 win over California. The Buckeyes received the remaining first-place vote and 625 points.

The 5-6-7-8 positions again went to Michigan, a 35-7 victor over Navy; idle Nebraska; Notre Dame, which blanked Michigan State 16-0, and Louisiana State, a 12-6 winner over Rice.

Auburn's second straight upset, a 19-13 triumph over Mississippi following a victory over Tennessee the previous week, vaulted the Tigers from 17th to ninth while Texas, hard-pressed to beat Utah State 27-12, slipped from ninth to 10th.

Auburn's meteoric rise also dropped Tennessee, Washington and Colorado one spot each to 11th, 12th and 13th. UCLA remained 14th, trailed by Penn State, Air Force, Stanford, Iowa State, Oklahoma State and Arkansas.

Oklahoma State reached the Top Twenty for the first time this season while Arkansas made it back after dropping out following an opening-game loss to Southern Cal.

Last week's Second Ten consisted of Washington, Colorado, Florida State, UCLA, Stanford, Penn State, Auburn, Mississippi, Air Force and Iowa State.

Florida State dropped out after a 42-13 mauling by underdog Florida.

Defensive Award To Dan McDonough

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Dan McDonough ... spirited cocaptain plays with fierce pride and dedication ... should be a defensive giant in Tiger line ... hard-trying hustler.

That's what the Missouri football brochure says about McDonough, a tackle.

McDonough proved "a defensive giant" Saturday even though Missouri lost to Oklahoma State 17-16 and today was named by a panel of sports writers as the week's top defensive player in the Big Eight Conference.

McDonough made four unassisted tackles and was credited with 11 assists. Missouri coaches thought he was their most consistent defensive player and that he adjusted quickly after the Cowboys had early success running up the middle.

The Tiger tackle was selected by a split vote, beating out Colorado's tackle Mark Cooney, who ran 69 yards with an interception for the touchdown that broke open a close game in the Buffs' 38-17 victory over Kansas State.

Cooney was also in on nine tackles, including three solo stops.

"McDonough was a real aggressive player in pursuit," said Missouri Coach Al Onofrio. "We've been real pleased with his play this year."

Before the selections were made, the play of safety Ron Coppenbarger of Kansas State also was given careful study. Coppenbarger made 13 tackles, 12 of them unassisted, in the Wildcats' defeat by the Buffaloes. He stopped Ken Johnson at the goal line on fourth down and was praised by Coach Vince Gibson of Kansas State.

Also nominated were cornerback Darryll Stewart of Oklahoma State and end Pat Ryan of Kansas.

Dave Jaynes, Kansas quarterback, was unanimously selected the conference's offensive player of the week Monday. Jaynes, only player to be named twice this season, was tapped for his performance in the Jayhawks' 34-28 triumph over Minnesota.

Jaynes hit on 16 of 29 passes for 229 yards and three touchdowns against the Gophers.

To Seed Teams

LINCOLN — The Kaysinger Conference coaches are scheduled to meet here Wednesday night at 7 p.m. to seed for the conference tournament, which will be held in Lincoln, Nov. 6-11.

Stan Mikita:

'We'll Miss Bobby Hull'

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — "Miss him? Sure we're going to miss him. How can you not miss a player like Bobby Hull. We're just going to have to work harder and make the best of it," says Stan Mikita, veteran leader of the Chicago Black Hawks.

"It'll happen. It's something I don't want to hear but you can bet it will happen. As soon as we lose a couple of games or get behind a couple of goals, you'll hear them screaming in the gallery 'We want Bobby, we want Bobby.' That's what I don't want to hear.

"Naturally, everybody looked up to Bobby. He was the team leader. If that's the role I have to assume now, that's fine. At least we've won our first two games," said Mikita.

So far, so good. The Hawks opened the season Saturday night with a 3-1 victory in Toronto and came home Sunday to knock off the New York Rangers, the National Hockey League favorites, 5-1.

Mikita has been the key. Whether it has been the absence of Bobby Hull, who took $2 million and went to the World Hockey Association; the tour with Team Canada or the fact he has had to assume team leadership, the little Czech has been playing with a dash which helped him win four NHL scoring titles in the 1960s.

"I feel good," said the 14-year veteran, who has been plagued with back miseries in recent years. "I did some exercises which helped and I really extended myself working with Team Canada.

"Everybody was working so hard to get in shape for the Russians that I had to keep pace and now find myself in great condition.

"And I've got the confidence again with the puck," Mikita said. "I don't care how long you play, there are times you're afraid to touch the puck thinking you might make a mistake."

Cliff Koroll will attest to that. Mikita has picked up four assists while linemate Koroll, who has had slow starts the last two seasons, has scored three goals.

"Stan's working so hard and playing so well there's no reason why I can't get off to fast start. I think he's one of the smartest men in the game and he's tremendous in setting up plays.

"Bobby Hull?" said Koroll "We know what happened last summer. It just makes us realize how much harder everybody has to work."

"Bobby Hull?" said Chico Maki. "If we fall behind now, we can't look over to left wing and think 'Bobby will do it.' There's no Bobby. We have to do it ourselves."

On Probation

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — The athletic director and basketball coaches at the University of Southwestern Louisiana were placed on probation Monday for irregularities in recruiting athletes.

A. G. Urban, the athletic director, was placed on indefinite probation and must have future athletic office expenditures first approved by the athletic business manager. Beryl Shipley, the basketball coach who has built U.S.L. into a power, and his assistant, Tom Cox, each was placed on two years probation, restricted from recruiting for that time and the total of basketball scholarships was reduced by two.

Wilt's First Workout

Los Angeles Lakers' all-pro center Wilt Chamberlain (with ball) worked out for the first time Monday with his teammates. He ended his month-long holdout and, according to Lakers' owner Jack Kent Cooke, " ... all contractual problems have been resolved." Chamberlain, a former standout player in the Big 8 with the University of Kansas, is starting his second year of a two-year contract. (UPI)

14 Teams Suffer Dips In Baseball Attendance

NEW YORK (AP) — The Giants lost more than their hearts in San Francisco during the 1972 season as 14 of the 24 major league baseball teams suffered dropoffs in average attendance.

San Francisco drew crowds at a 9,392 clip to skid almost 40 per cent from the National League's team's 1971 average of 15,362 fans everytime they opened the gates at Candlestick Park.

Although the majors' total attendance figures are misleading due to the player strike last spring, the average turnout in both leagues was down slightly from 16,373 to 15,981.

The American League, although still a distant second to the National in crowd appeal, managed to show a slight increase. The AL averaged 13,818 for 841 openings this summer, compared to 13,487 for 880 chances in 1971.

National League teams drew people at an 18,100 clip, well down from the 19,186 average a year ago.

The New York Mets repeated as major league crowd kings with an average at Shea Stadium of 29,641 for 72 openings. They, however, were off from a 30,631 mark in 1971.

Detroit's vastly-improved Tigers lurged 25,753 on an average day at Tiger Stadium. The American League-leading figure was up almost 25 per cent from Detroit's No. 1 mark of 20,663 last year.

Half of the 12 American League teams including Cleveland, Detroit, New York, Chicago, Oakland and Texas boasted increases. The Texas franchise averaged 8,982 to barely outdo the 8,509 mark when the team was in Washington the previous season.

The White Sox, eighth in AL attendance last year, jumped to third behind Detroit and Boston. Chicago averaged 17,991, up from 12,085.

In the National, the only gainers were Pittsburgh and Cincinnati—the playoff teams—along with Houston and San Diego.

American League teams missed 39 playing chances due to the player strike and the National missed 44. Thus, the major league total of 27,168,266 could not be reasonably compared to the 29,193,417 drawn in 1971.

Had the 24 clubs played a full schedule—averaging the same crowds—the total would have been boosted by some 1.3 million.

High-heeled 'Sneaker'

St. Louis Cardinals' wide receiver Bobby Moore, gets a kick out of a comment about his high-heeled shoes, at the St. Louis Quarterback Club Luncheon, Monday. The University of Oregon rookie caught two leaping touchdown passes in the Cards' upset win over Minnesota, Sunday. Sporting the blue suede, high-heeled shoes, Moore was asked if he thought he might need a little more height to catch those passes. (UPI)

Kings Get Bucks' Forward

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City-Omaha Kings of the National Basketball Association acquired forward Toby Kimball from the NBA's Milwaukee Bucks Monday in exchange for cash and a future draft choice.

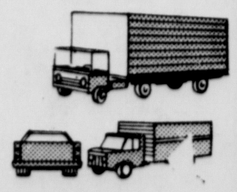

The 6-foot-8, 240-pound Kimball, from the University of Connecticut, has played with Boston, San Diego and Milwaukee in six NBA seasons.

Last year he averaged 3.5 points in 74 games with the Bucks.

The Kings also placed on waivers Sam Sibert of Kentucky State, their first-round draft pick this year, and 6-foot-6 forward Walt Gilmore, who previously played one season with the NBA's Portland Trailblazers.

Bucs Pin Hopes On Sore Arm of Ellis

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates are going to steal a leaf from the book of the Cincinnati Reds and try to win the National League pennant today with the help of a sore-arm pitcher—Doc Ellis.

The Pirates hope they have better luck than the Reds.

Cincinnati pinned its hopes Monday on the ailing right arm of Gary Nolan, but the pressure of going all-out against the power-packed Pittsburgh lineup took its toll.

Nolan could manage only six innings. His arm stiffened and he left with a one-run lead that the Pirates overcame to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five pennant playoff.

"I went as hard as I could for as long as I could," said the dejected Nolan, who had pitched 15 innings since the All-Star Game in July. "I just ran out of gas. I couldn't afford to continue."

Ellis' story is almost a carbon copy. The 27-year-old right-hander has a chronic pitching elbow condition. He went six innings Sept. 30 but it was his first start since Sept. 13.

The Pirates' 3-2 victory Monday was keyed by outfielder Rennie Stennett and catcher Manny Sanguillen and relief pitcher Bruce Kison. Ever-reliable Dave Giusti came on to check the Reds' big bats after Pittsburgh wiped out a 2-0 Cincinnati lead.

Stennett made the first big play. Cincinnati's Johnny Bench tripled leading off the fourth. The Reds already led 2-0 and it looked as if they were out to get another run.

Pirates' starter Nelson Briles got Tony Perez on a nice, running back-to-the plate catch in short left by shortstop Gene Alley. He then walked Denis Menke. The Reds now had runners at the corners with one out. Cesar Geronimo hit a fly ball to Stennett in left, and the outfielder gunned down Bench trying to score after the catch. It was a perfect one-bounce, on-the-money throw to Sanguillen.

"That beat us," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson, who still insisted the playoff would go five games. "I thought that was the turning point of the game, murmured Anderson. "Our report was that Stennett had a better-than-average arm, but wasn't that accurate."

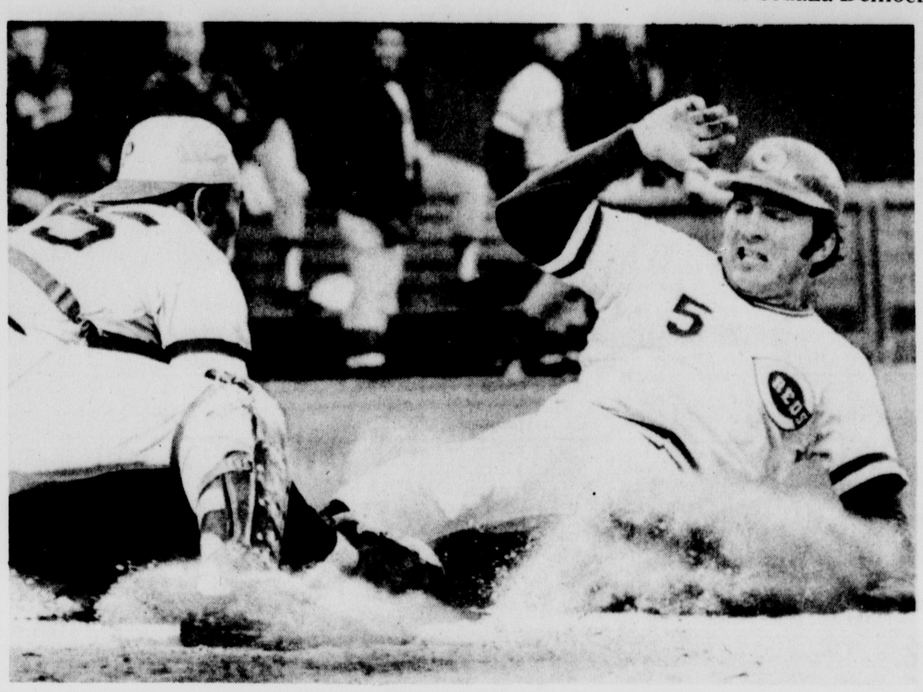

Stennett's throw seemed to fire the Pirates. A half-inning later, Sanguillen socked a pitch over the left-centerfield fence for a home run to make it 2-1.

"When I left the dugout, someone warned me to look for cure alls," recalled Sanguillen. "I said, 'No, I'll look for fastballs.'"

Pittsburgh tied it in the seventh off relievers Pedro Borbon and Clay Carroll when Richie Hebner was hit by a pitch, Sanguillen singled and Gene Alley sacrificed to place runners at second and third. Pinch-hitter Vic Davalillo was intentionally walked. Stennett then rapped a run-scoring single.

In the eighth, Willie Stargell walked and Al Oliver doubled. Hebner was purposely passed to load the bases.

Sanguillen hit a sharp rounder toward the hole between short and third that Cincinnati's Darrell Chaney reached and tried for a second-to-first doubleplay. Sanguillen, however, beat the relay and the winning run scored.

Bench Cut Down at Home

Cincinnati's Johnny Bench (right) is out at home after tagging up at third on Rennie Stennett's fly to left in the fourth inning of Monday's National League Playoff game between the Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates. The double play, which ended the inning, was culminated when Bucs' catcher Manny Sanguillen (left) put the tag on Bench. (UPI)

Raiders Capture Dull Win

HOUSTON (AP) — It's good that the Houston-Oakland pro football game was on national television Monday night—you'd have to see it to believe it.

Quarterback Daryle Lamonica finally got Oakland rolling with touchdown pass plays of 16 and 27 yards and George Blanda, a former Oiler, kicked two field goals in a 34-0 rout before 51,278 in the Astrodome.

But by the time the Raiders made it a runaway with three fourth quarter touchdowns—two of them set up by interceptions, more than half of the crowd had left in disgust at the performance.

The unhappy mood spread to the TV audience. The Astrodome stat crew estimated 75 calls came in from as far away as Canada, blasting everything from the Oilers to the television commentary.

The Oilers, getting their first chance at the Monday night spectacle since 1970, got a severe case of stage fright and stuttered to only 69 yards in total net offense—their worst offense showing in history.

The Oakland defense, ranked first in the AFC in pass defense, picked off five Oiler passes and dropped several other possible interceptions.

The Raiders, who lost four of four fumbles, kept plugging and finally got their offense started.

"I told them at the half all we have to do is settle down and something will come our way," Oakland Coach John Madden said. "On offense, so many untimely things happened to us. They had a good pass rush. They went all out."

Field goals of 46 and 35 yards by Blanda and a 16-yard touchdown pass to Fred Biletnikoff gave Oakland a 13-0 lead going into the fourth quarter when the bottom fell out on the Oilers.

Lamonica hit rookie Mike Siani for a 27-yard TD to open the last period and interceptions by Nemiah Wilson and Otis Sistrunk set up the final two TDs—a 14-yard run by Clarence Davis and a 2-yard pass from Ken Stabler to tight end Bob Moore.

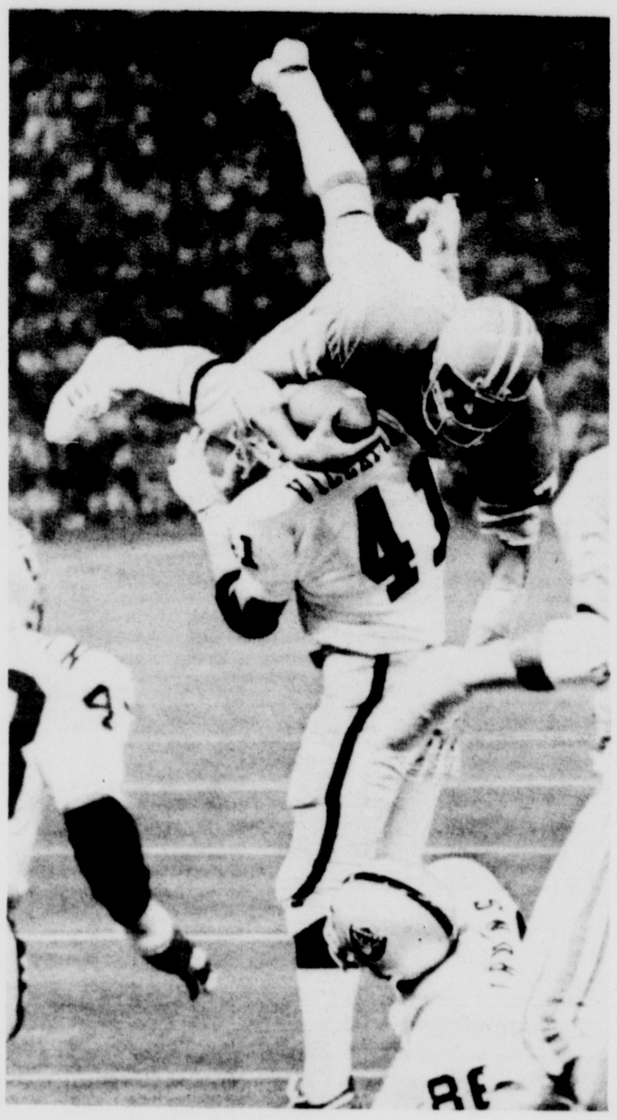

The last two TDs were only 29 seconds apart.

Typical of the Oilers' performance was the second quarter when defensive end Greg Sampson fell on an Oakland fumble at the Raider two-yard line.

The Smith-Cotton freshman A-team will be in Jefferson City Wednesday afternoon to play Helias. Game time is scheduled for 4:15 p.m.

Free Ride

Houston Oilers' quarterback Dan Pastorini gets an unwanted "free ride" from Oakland's Phil Villapino (41) during the second quarter of Monday night's National Football League game in the Houston Astrodome. Pastorini was "dropped" for a one-yard loss on the play. (UPI)

Tigers Face Elimination

A's Eye Sweep

DETROIT (AP) — Right-hander Joe Coleman had the job of keeping Detroit's hopes alive as Oakland aimed for a sweep today in the American League playoffs.

The A's, who took the first two games in the best-of-five series, countered with left-hander Ken Holtzman. An Oakland victory would advance the A's into the World Series against the National League champion.

The Tigers, facing elimination, remained confident of a comeback.

"If we win tomorrow," said Manager Billy Martin at Monday's workout, "we'll win three in a row. We've always risen up to the situation before and we can do it again."

Martin and the Tigers got one piece of good news before their workout. They learned that Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris had been suspended from the remainder of the playoffs and fined $500 for hurling his bat at Tiger pitcher Lerrin LaGrow in Sunday's game.

"Good," exclaimed Martin. "That's what he had coming."

Martin had led a Tiger charge out of the dugout after the A's speedy shortstop was hit by a pitch and responded by heaving his bat. It took three umpires to keep the Tiger skipper away from Campaneris.

Billy had cooled off considerably by the time the Tigers worked out Monday and suggested that Campy's explosion might end up helping Detroit.

"He might have done us a favor. I think it put a little fuel in there," said Martin. "I'll let you know after tomorrow."

Campaneris' suspension was good news for Coleman. Campy stole 52 bases during the regular season, leading the AL for the sixth time in eight years. He swiped two Sunday before the seventh inning rhubarb.

"I can go out and pitch my own ball game," said Coleman, "unlike if Campaneris was out there on the bases. Campy and (Joe) Rudi are the two keys to their team."

Coleman, like Holtzman, a 19-game winner, said he felt relaxed and confident.

"I felt more pressure in the Boston series than now," he said. "I think I've got my stuff together."

The Tigers, who won the East Division crown in an end-of-season showdown with Boston, have come back before. This is a veteran team and many of the players were with the 1968 Detroit club that erased a 3-1 deficit to take three straight games and the World Series from St. Louis.

Strap Match Highlights Mat Card

An Indian strap match is on tap tonight on a four-match, mixed wrestling program scheduled at Convention Hall. Both heavyweights and midgets are in the lineup.

Paired in the strap match will be Harley Race, the current Central States champion, and Danny Little Bear.

Tag team warring also is slated. In that event, the Japanese pair of Yasu Fuji and Chati Yokuchi will go against Omar Atlas and Les Thornton.

Midgets will be in action in the special event. Booked are Little Bruiser and Bobo Johnson.

Opening the American Legion-sponsored show at 8:15 p.m. will be a clash between Atlas and Fuji.

Independent Team Seeking Cage Tilts

Merlyn McCown, coach of the Over-the-Hill basketball team of Sedalia, is trying to schedule games for the 1972-73 men's independent cage season. Area teams interested in playing either at home or on the road may contact McCown at either 826-7276 or 826-0045.

Judy Rankin Braves Wind, Cold for Win

SOUTHBURY, Conn. (AP) — Judy Rankin braved the wind and the cold at the Heritage Village Country Club Monday and pulled away for a five-stroke victory in the second Ladies Professional Golf Association Heritage Village Open.

Mrs. Rankin fired a two-under par for a 54-hole total of 212, which is seven-under par, and earned first prize of $3,750.

The 28-year-old Midland, Tex., mother was tied at five-under par with Kathy Farrer for the lead going into the final round. After Miss Farrer lost six strokes to par in the first 10 holes, Mrs. Rankin was in command.

She bogeyed the first two holes on the back nine, but halted her skid by exploding from a bunker to within a foot of the pin and salvaged a par on the 12th hole.

She clinched her second victory of 1972 by rolling in a 12-foot birdie putt on the 14th and a two-foot birdie on the 15th.

Betty Burfeindt, the opening round leader with a 67, recovered from a quadruple bogey Sunday, and shot par for second place at two under par 217.

Petty Appears To Have Driving Title Captured

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — With only two races left in the season, Richard Petty apparently has wrapped up NASCAR's Winston Cup Grand National driving championship.

He has a lead of 127.9 points—8,012.40 points to runner-up Bobby Allison's 7,884.50—in the races sanctioned by the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing.

Allison shaved Petty's lead by 30 points by winning the National 500 Sunday at Charlotte, N.C.

Petty, who never has won a race at the Charlotte Motor Speedway, was running second to Allison when his car slammed into a wall with 20 laps to go. Petty finished eighth.

James Hylton, who finished sixth, is third in Winston Cup standings with 7,558.70 points.

Petty drives a Dodge, Allison a Chevrolet and Hylton a Mercury.

Allison's victory, his ninth of the year, brought his winnings to $236,295. He leads in this department, with Petty second at $185,745. David Pearson, who finished third in a Mercury at Charlotte, is third at $132,305.

Take a look at the West hand only. Your partner opens with one heart. South overcalls with one spade and you give a limit jump raise to three hearts. The bidding continues with three spades; four hearts by your partner; and four spades by South.

It is obviously your hand. Your partner has opened the bidding and you are looking right at two aces. What should you do?

You don't want to bid five hearts. Your partner can have lots of good, sound opening bids that leave you no play for 11 tricks. Then, do you double?

The West player we were watching doubled. East left the double in and South was promptly set one trick at his four-spade contract.

"How could I tell that we were cold for six hearts," asked West.

"You couldn't," was our reply. "However, you could have let your partner into the game. All you had to do was pass."

If West had passed East would have gone on to five hearts. He would have seen little chance to hurt four spades. He might have been allowed to play there or the opponents might have gone to five spades. It would be too much for East-West to keep on to six but they would have picked up 300 instead of just 100 points.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

What do you bid now?

A—Bid two spades. You have the right strength for a two no-trump call, but your hand is such that you should explore suit possibilities first.

Experts To Discuss Phase II

A team of three experts on President Nixon's Economic Stabilization Program will be in Sedalia Friday to conduct a public awareness forum.

The conference, entitled "Phase II and You," is being sponsored by the Sedalia Jaycees in cooperation with the Chamber of Commerce. It will be held at the Bothwell Hotel.

Mike Dickey, Jaycee program chairman said, "This forum will give businessmen from Sedalia and the surrounding area an excellent opportunity to become better informed about the current economic situation."

The program, which will follow a 12:30 p.m. luncheon, will be keynoted by Jay Woodworth, deputy to the assistant secretary of the Treasury for economic policy. He will present an analysis of the overall effects of the Economic Stabilization Program since its beginning in August, 1971.

The afternoon program will feature Judith Futch, attorney-advisor with the Price Commission, and L. Erick Kanter, deputy director of Public Affairs for the Pay Board.

A question and answer period will follow the prepared program.

Registration will begin at 12 noon. The forum is open to the public. The cost is $4.

Registration Needed Now For Meeting

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARRENSBURG — Nearly 250 persons are expected to gather Saturday at the Student Union of Central Missouri State University here for the second annual genealogical workshop sponsored by the West Central Missouri Genealogical Society.

Gale R. Yocum, Warrensburg, president, said speakers will include Martha Montgomery of Moroa, Ill., who will speak on research in English parish records and John Insely of Coddington, of Bordentown, N.J., whose topic is, "Research in the New England States."

Advance registration is required, Yocum said, and persons should contact Mrs. Milford Quimby, Route 3, Warrensburg.

Decision On Graves Expected

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — As the Des Moines Parks Board prepared to reach a decision Tuesday on whether to return two controversial homemade tombstones to the graves of Cynthia Frederick's children, a councilman expressed concern for the city's reputation.

"I want to see the proper conclusion reached on the incident itself," said Councilman George Whitmer, "and I'm terribly concerned about the city. I don't want to see the name dragged down when perhaps there's no reason for it."

At issue are two concrete markers which were removed from the graves of the 21-year-old mother's infant children by municipal cemetery workmen.

City officials appear to be caught by a wave of public sentiment. Some indicated they will switch their allegiance from enforcing a city ordinance to supporting the plight of Mrs. Frederick.

Park Board President James Morris Jr. said Monday officials have "done a lot of soul searching. I think we'll grant permission for the stones to be set."

"I'd be enraged if it had been my children this had happened to," said Mayor Richard Olson.

The Park Board's cemetery committee has refused to recommend that the two gravemarkers be put back.

"I don't think anyone at that time realized the momentum this decision would gain as an emotional item," said George Whitmer, city council representative to the Park Board.

Bragging Youth Is Nabbed For Stealing

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — It's one thing to steal the mayor's wristwatch, but it's another to brag about its origin and try to sell it for an inflated price.

Baltimore police say it was the bragging and inflating that led to the arrest Friday of a 15-year-old boy on a charge of stealing Mayor William Donald Schaefer's $42 watch while the mayor's arm was hanging out of his limousine window last month.

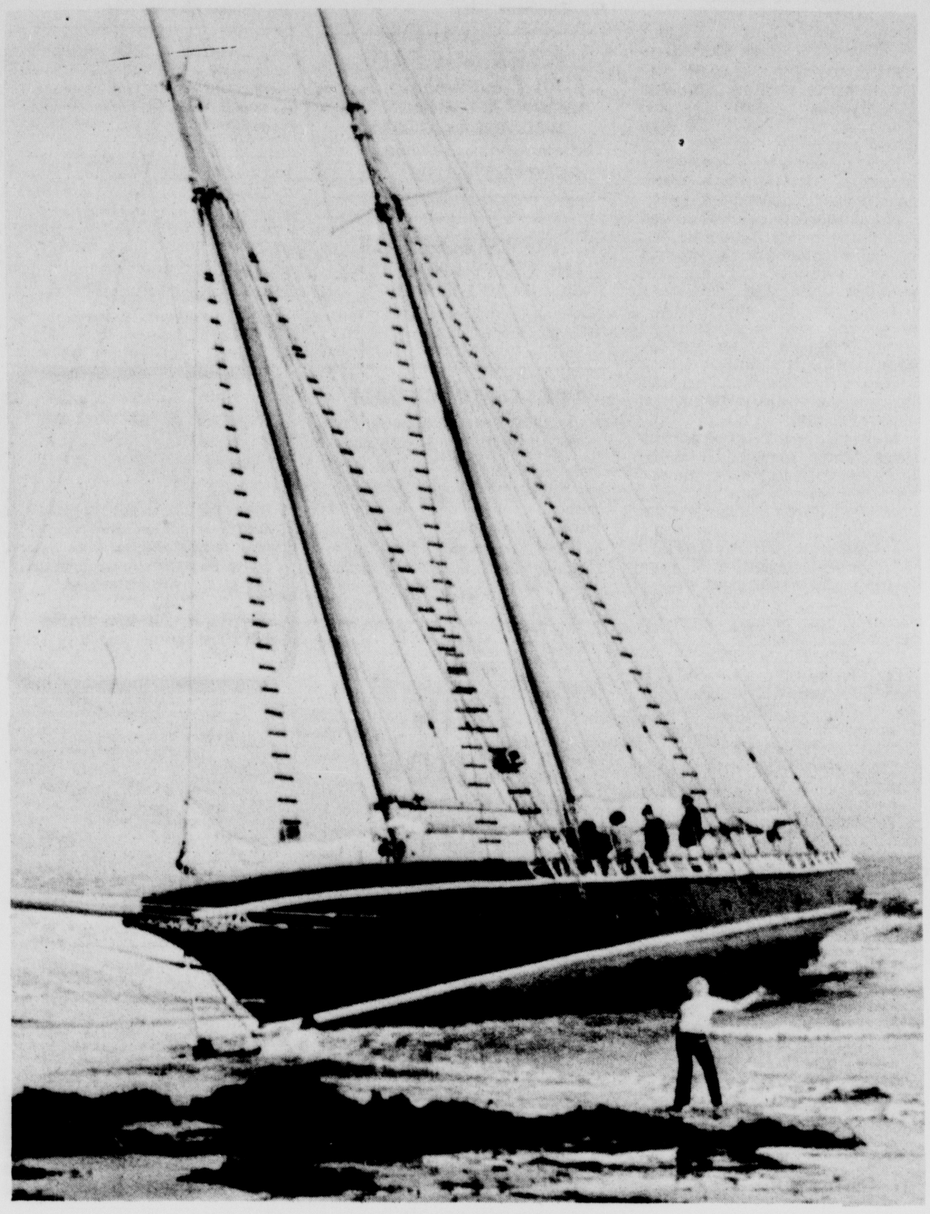

Police said the arrest resulted from the boy trying to sell the watch for $75 because it had belonged to Schaefer.

The market didn't respond, however. Police said the watch was eventually sold for $10 but still hasn't been recovered.

City Will Attempt 'Birth Control'

McALESTER, Okla. (AP)— McAlester has called off the pigeon shoot scheduled for the downtown area Tuesday night. It's going to try birth control pills, instead.

The pigeon shoot, which was to be open to anyone as long as they registered with the Police Department, was canceled after merchants complained that it might scare off more customers than pigeons.

Shoved Ashore

The 125-foot schooner Shamrock IV rests on the beach at Santa Cruz, Calif., after she was tossed aground over the weekend by heavy waves. The schooner, with 28 persons aboard, is owned by Dr. Jeremiah J. Wolohan, Kentfield, Calif. The vessel was anchored off Santa Cruz when the windstorm hit her and pushed her onto the beach. No injuries were reported. (UPI)

Bottled Panaceas Duping Millions

By MIKE WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new generation of bottled panaceas—today's health-food fads, quack cures and false advertising—is duping millions of Americans, a government report says.

The report, released Sunday, concluded that:

"The fallacy of do-it-yourself medication based on irrational concepts of trial and error, and of testimonial evidence influenced by unaided recovery and psychosomatic effects, seems a proper but neglected area for modern health education.

"It is probable that there is an enormous waste of money, not to mention adverse health effects, from misguided consumer experimentation with health products," said the report prepared by National Analysts Inc. of Philadelphia.

The 426-page report was based on interviews with 2,839 adults during the summer of 1969. It was funded with $157,000 from seven government agencies in response to a Senate committee's request in 1965.

The report found that even if people were told a medicine is worthless they probably wouldn't believe it.

As an example, the report said that 42 per cent of the adults surveyed said they would not believe almost unanimous expert opinion that a cancer "cure" was worthless.

And only 45 per cent said they would favor a ban on such medicine.

Other findings included:

—Three-fourths of the persons interviewed said extra vitamins—which medical scientists say are wasteful and possibly harmful—give them extra energy.

—Two per cent also said they did something almost daily to aid bowel movements. Medical scientists say there is no universal standard of regularity.

—More than 10 per cent said they would try a treatment recommended by a friend, even if a doctor said it was worthless.

As for advertising of these products, many said they feel advertisers are so tightly regulated that they discount "the possibility of manufactured evidence, made-up testimonials and specific false claims of effectiveness."

Postpone Busing Contract

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Memphis School Board Monday night postponed awarding a contract for the busing of nearly 2,000 city pupils.

Lawyers for the board reported they still needed to polish the proposed $500,000 contract with School Transportation, Inc., of Kansas City.

The delay came despite an Oct. 15 deadline imposed on the board by the Kansas City firm, which said it would not be able to start the busing by Jan. 22, as ordered by a federal judge, unless it had a contract by mid-month.

The board indicated it might meet again later this week to consider the matter if lawyers were ready by then.

Judge Robert W. McRae Jr. of U.S. District Court has ordered the city school system, presently without buses, to start transporting pupils at the start of the second semester.

The postponement of the contract awarding averted a confrontation within the nine-member board.

Four white members said they would vote against the contract in the hope the U.S. Supreme Court acts on a motion by the board to stay McRae's busing order.

The ninth member of the board, Hunter Lane Jr., said he was undecided.

In addition to the city motion before the high court, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has filed motions with the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of appeals in Cincinnati seeking even more desegregation on Jan. 22 than ordered by McRae.

In addition to the Kansas City firm, the Memphis Transit Authority has offered to bus the pupils, but its bid was about twice as high and school officials pointed out that commuter buses do not meet state school bus safety standards.

Mold Scare Exaggerated

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read an article saying that mold on food can cause cancer. It quoted a doctor in Germany saying that malignant tumors are created by fungus and molds which grow on many types of foods, including corn, rice, bread, jams, jellies and other common foods. He claimed that if the housewife scraped away the mild ew on bread or on jam that invisible fungus spores would be just inches away and would cause trouble.

I have often scraped mold away from bread and then toasted the remainder and removed the mold on jams and jellies. Or I've cut off half a potato or tomato and used the good half. Now I am frightened. Is it all that bad. Is the family kitchen such a monster.

I am also a cheese buff. I buy the best because I am a gourmet cook, and I know that cheese stores rub off the mold and then sell the cheese. If it's so bad, the cheese stores certainly need supervision.

Dear Reader — If the only cause for cancers were mold and fungus, these diseases would have been cured or prevented long ago. Let me remind you that life-saving penicillin was obtained from the mold on bread. I don't advocate eating mold or fungi (unless you're talking about mushrooms which are giant fungi) but I'm afraid that you've read an exaggerated report that is not accepted by the medical scientific community. In other words, it's more of a scare article than an article dealing with established facts.

Excessive ingestion of yeast can sometimes cause some problems with digestion but other than that there isn't real proof that eating foods that have had the mold removed will cause any difficulties, and even that problem is relatively rare.

Dear Dr. Lamb — What would you think if you were in a hospital deathly sick and all the visitors were standing around puffing on cigarettes, cigars and pipes up and down the hall until you could hardly see. My wife went through this for several weeks before she passed away. Why hospitals allow this is beyond me. However, doctors come into the sick room puffing on cigarettes or a rotten cigar too.

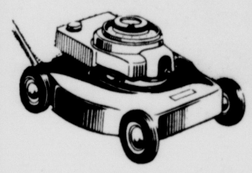

Dear Reader — I think it's terrible. In this situation the family would be entirely justified to ask for a "no visitors" sign to be posted on the patient's door. Short of this a "no smoking" sign should be posted above the bed.

In my opinion, doctors should not smoke while they are seeing patients, either in their consultation room and most certainly not in a public hospital within the sickroom of the patient. Also, I think patients owe doctors this same courtesy. I personally dislike having a patient sit down across the desk from me and blowing smoke in my face. I'm sure many other doctors feel the same way.

Too many visitors when you are sick are a pain in the neck. It is no time to have to play host.

Proxmire Reveals Threat of Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire says he was threatened with assassination during the debate on the controversial Lockheed loan guarantee and changed the route of his morning jog to work to avoid "an easy sniper pickoff."

Proxmire, the Senate's most famous jogger, made the disclosure in a new book in which he criticizes alleged military and domestic federal waste and calls for an end to most secret hearings in Congress and the executive branch.

The Wisconsin Democrat had opposed the Nixon administration's ultimately successful bill to provide a $250 million loan guarantee to the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., the nation's largest defense contractor.

In his book, entitled "Uncle Sam, Last of the Bigtime Spenders," Proxmire said threats to his life ultimately proved groundless but were taken seriously at the time because of the heat aroused by congressional debate.

He gives this account:

"There were even threats on my life and that of Henry Durham, a brave and courageous Lockheed employe who had bucked the company's wasteful practices.

"We got the FBI to protect Durham around the clock and I have the FBI and the Secret Service check out in detail the threats I received.

"One of them, a threat to come to Washington to kill me, was made by a Lockheed employe in Georgia before a group of his coworkers.

"When he was interviewed he claimed he said it in jest, but several of those who heard it reported to me and to the authorities precisely because they thought the man meant it. In the end no harm came to us."

In the book, Proxmire called for far ranging changes in methods of federal financing, taxation and military and domestic procurement.

He also urged an end to secrecy in the budget-writing process of the federal government.

He recommended that long before final decisions are made public hearings be held on budget programs on an agency-by-agency, department-by-department basis before presidential approval.

Proxmire said almost every congressional hearing should be open to the public and press except when "matters of the most secret national security issues are involved."

Claims Diet Pills Have Little Value

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government-hired panel of consultants has concluded that diet pills are of "clinically trivial" value in weight loss and, with one exception, should be tightly controlled.

The recommendation, if accepted by regulatory agencies, would permanently crimp the profitable, multimillion-dollar antifat business by prohibiting refillable prescriptions and imposing manufacturing quotas.

After reviewing mountains of effectiveness data sorted in a pioneering computer project, the consultants said diet pills in general cause the loss of only a fraction of a pound per week in short-term use.

The total impact of drug-induced weight loss over that of diet alone "must be considered clinically trivial," they said, especially in light of the high potential for abuse of the diet drugs.

The group of four physicians and two statisticians was headed by Dr. Thaddeus E. Prout, associate professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University and a former member of the Food and Drug Administration's advisory committee on metabolic and endocrine drugs.

The FDA is undertaking an extensive review of all diet drugs in preparation for recommendations to the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

The lone exception to the panel's findings was fenfluramine, patented as Pondimin by A.H. Robbins Co. of Richmond, Va.

Clinical trials have shown fenfluramine to be significantly effective in weight controls but with an apparent absence of the stimulant side-effects which make other diet pills popular among youths, truck drivers, athletes and other persons seeking a boost.

FDA officials are concerned, however, that the panel's recommendations would give the Robbins firm a virtual monopoly on the market for appetite-curbing pills. The drug is not yet approved for weight control.

"Everybody would like to treat them all equally," said Dr. Barrett Scoville, deputy director of FDA's division of neuropharmacological drug products. "But we are scientists and there are some facts we can't ignore."

Parker Assails Banks Favoritism

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Political cronyism in connection with state bank accounts is costing Missouri taxpayers up to $400,000 annually, George Parker, Republican candidate for state treasurer, believes.

Parker, speaking to a Republican women's club Monday, said no more than five days should elapse before state revenues are deposited in the treasury for disbursement or investment.

He said a state audit shows that now money remains in a Kansas City bank for as long as 75 days and then is "funneled into yet another no-interest cubbyhole in a Jefferson City bank, where it stays put another week or more."

He said a "speed-up of funds to the treasury could be a $300,000 to $400,000 improvement in state investments each year. These hundreds of thousands of dollars belong to ... the taxpaying public — and not to favored bankers, political cronies, pals or buddies."

Maplewood Man Is Fatally Shot

MAPLEWOOD, Mo. (AP) — Joseph M. Presley, 26, of Maplewood, was shot to death Monday night when he entered a neighbor's apartment and an argument developed, police said.

Police said the neighbor, James A. Wellner, 30, was booked on suspicion of homicide.

Maplewood is in St. Louis County.

For Tables and Chairs

Working to provide equipment for Sedalia Boys Club are Mrs. William M. Green, left, and Mrs. Gail Demand, president, of Mu Iota chapter of Beta Sigma Phi who help Jerry Lewis Cinema manager, Loy Holman, hang a poster announcing the premier benefit showing of "Nicholas and Alexandra," which is to begin Wednesday at the threatre. Proceeds from advance ticket sales will be used for such items as game tables and chairs and tickets are available from any sorority member, the Chamber of Commerce office, MFA Exchange, 2200 Clinton Road, or the C. W. Flower Co., Mrs. Demand said.

Local Boys Club To Benefit

Morris Byrum, member of the board of directors of Sedalia Boys Club, told members of Mu Iota chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Thursday that the most urgent need for the Boys Club is for sturdy tables and chairs and game tables.

Byrum, who represented the chapter's local philanthropic project, told the group that because of very limited facilities and funds, many entertainment and recreation programs for the near 200 boys who use the Club are not possible.

Chapter members were reminded to sell advance tickets to the premier showing of "Nicholas and Alexandra," scheduled to open Wednesday at the Jerry Lewis Cinema. All proceeds will be used for the purchase of equipment for the Sedalia Boys Club.

Mrs. Gail Demand, president, announced plans for a city-wide meeting with other Beta Sigma Phi chapters Nov. 6 at Farm and Home and she told members a Halloween party is being planned.

Church Notes

The United Methodist Women of Wesley United Methodist Church met Thursday at the church for a program on higher education and today's students.

Jerry Greer, academic director of student activities, State Fair Community College, addressed the group and was assisted by a college student, Miss Judy Zurcher.

The prayer service was given by Mrs. Lloyd Banaka and Mrs. Maude Harris, and a film strip was shown by Dr. Thomas Hall.

Mrs. Hall gave the closing meditation and a luncheon was served by Circle No. 4.

White Shirts Back

White shirts, which haven't been seen for quite a while, have returned for men. The white shirts will set off the season's more colorful suits and ties.

Polly's Pointers

Cooling Curtails Biscuit Explosions

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Milly's ready-to-bake biscuits probably explode because of being out of the refrigerator too long before baking. Remove just before baking. In summer, when so much time elapses between store and home, I take along a foam picnic container when I go shopping and any such articles are carried home in it. — MRS. T. E. A.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I get tired of having to brush spider webs off the house. Is there any way to keep spiders from building their webs on the house? — C. N.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those people who throw or drop pills on the floor or street and then just leave them there. I saw what looked like a dozen aspirin tablets near a drinking fountain in a doctor's building. Luckily, I had gone with the children to get a drink or they might have been tempted to pick them up. Today I saw a lot of blue pills and some capsules on the street in front of a newstand. There was a sewer nearby and I kicked them in it. The person who dropped them could have done that. Some day an innocent child may pick up one of these pills and eat it thinking it was candy. Please, readers, dispose of those pills some other way — they can always be flushed down a commode. — A MOTHER OF YOUNG CHILDREN

Student Tells Of Summer Tour

A student with the American Institute for Foreign Study, Miss Dena Holloway, 2501 Plaza, addressed members of the Sedalia Rod and Gun Club Auxiliary recently at the home of Mrs. Jim Anderson.

Miss Holloway spoke about the places she visited and studied. Cities her tour included were Rome, Venice, Florence, Athens, Delphi, Paris and London.

She was introduced by Mrs. Christine Riley.

Meeting Date Rescheduled

The Wednesday re-orientation meeting of the Bothwell Hospital Auxiliary has been postponed until Oct. 18, according to Mrs. Claude Lambirth, president.

You can make your boy a lot tougher.

Buy him a pair of Dickies jeans and he'll have the toughest pants in the neighborhood.

Because Dickies jeans wear as well as the work-clothes Dickies makes for your husband.

And you never have to worry about them, because they're so inexpensive. So when they meet their end on a fence or even if they give up after a year of torture, you've gotten your money's worth out of them.

SOME STRAIGHT TALK ON FOOD PRICES!

WHY DOES IT COST MORE FOR GROCERIES!

One big reason for the increase in the "grocery bill" is the change in merchandise sold in supermarkets. Today's supermarkets offer a wide range of products from bread and butter to charcoal, and including many non-food items such as pet food, garden supplies, toothpaste, baby powder, nylons, light bulbs and a score of other items.

Today you spend 28% of your "grocery bill" for these non-food items.

Three-fourths of all pet foods are sold through supermarkets, two-thirds of all toothpaste and over half the aspirin and baby powder.

Beer, health and beauty supplies, housewares, magazines and paper supplies all add to the average American's grocery bill, yet these are not food items.

"Convenience foods" greatly add to your food cost, too. You don't want to spend as much time in the kitchen, so you buy pre-cooked foods, freeze-dried products, packaged dinners, ready-made desserts, canned ham and potatoes in at least 50 prepared versions.

And today you can buy strawberries around the calendar, have ear corn for Thanksgiving, and enjoy what used to be "out-of-season" items all year long. U.S. Department of Agriculture home economists estimate that this built-in maid service has added 25% to the cost of food.

WARDS DUAL FLAME FURNACES PROVIDE HEAT COMFORT CONTROL!

GAS FURNACE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees this furnace against defects in materials and workmanship as follows:

- FOR 1 YEAR FROM DATE OF PURCHASE Montgomery Ward will repair or, at its option, replace defective parts free, including labor.
- FOR AN ADDITIONAL 19 YEARS Montgomery Ward will furnish free replacements for defective heat exchangers, charging only for installation.

For service under this guarantee, contact your nearest Montgomery Ward branch. Evidence of date of purchase required.

A.G.A. CERTIFIED DESIGN

- Heat exchanger guaranteed 20 yrs.
- Wall-mount thermostat included
- Multi-speed blower automatically adjusts speed to burner flame

Unlike other furnaces that operate only at one flame setting, Wards deluxe furnaces offer two flame settings you control with a switch on the thermostat! Set at low flame in mild weather; switch to high in cold—you burn only the fuel needed to maintain a desired overall temperature!

IMMEDIATE REPLACEMENT BATTERY GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees this battery to be free from defects in material and workmanship. If this battery fails to hold a charge Montgomery Ward will: 1. For 90 days from purchase, replace the battery free. 2. After 90 days, to the end of the guarantee period specified, replace the battery, charging a prorated amount—based on time since purchase—of the regular no trade-in selling price then in effect. Batteries used in commercial vehicles are guaranteed on a similar prorate basis for half of the normally specified term. For service under this guarantee, return battery with evidence of date of purchase to any Montgomery Ward branch.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance.

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance Prorated on
40,000 miles	Miles Driven
45 month	$13.00
40 month	10.00
39 month	8.00
36 month	6.00
33 month	5.00
30 month	4.00
24 month	3.00
18 month	2.00

Tread Wear Expectancy offer does not apply to tires used commercially.
